FINANCIAL DISASTER WOULD BE PLOTTERS' WORK, SAYS SENATOR

Senator Thomas Declares If Panic Should Come, It Would Be Result of Bankers' Plot, Not Underwood Revision Bill

CHARGES PANIC OF 1893 TO CLEVELAND AND BANKS

Democratic Senator Brands New York Stock Exchange as "the Most Prodigious Gambling Hell" of Any Age

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 15.—Senator Thomas, Democrat, of Colorado, and member of the senate finance committee, in a speech in the senate today, defended the Wilson tariff bill of 1893 from responsibility for the financial panic which followed it, and charged former President Grover Cleveland and the New York banks with conspiracy to precipitate a calamity in order to force the repeal of the Sherman silver act.

Though denouncing the Wilson bill of that time as "a most miserable pretense of tariff reform," he attempted to tear its skirts, and in the course of a caustic address branded the New York stock exchange as "the most prodigious gambling hell" of any age.

Referring to threats now being made that "the enactment of the Underwood bill into law will be a congressional sentence of death to business prosperity," Senator Thomas reiterated his charge of the bankers' plot to bring on the panic of 1893.

After reviewing its history, he said:

"There can be no denial of the origin and cause of the frightful calamity. Mr. Cleveland and the New York banks conspired to wreck the progress and prosperity of the nation that they might be rid of an unwelcome law.

"The Wilson law was the most miserable pretense of tariff reform ever placed upon our statute books. It was miscarried by the senate, agreed to by the house only because its long and disgraceful sojourn through the upper house disgusted the people with the very thought of tariff reform, and repudiated by the president as a thing to be ashamed of and as many as possible who wish to hear the senator.

Representative Wallace Miller, of Bibb, chairman of the joint committee named to arrange for the address of Senator Smith communicated with the senator and learned that next Friday would be a convenient day for him to visit Atlanta. Arrangements were therefore completed for the address to be made at noon.

It is not known what subject Senator Smith will choose to talk to the Georgia lawmakers about, but his address is sure to be one of great interest, and the house chamber will no doubt be packed to its capacity by those who wish to hear him.

The acceptance of the assembly's invitation, and the fixing by Senator Smith of the time most convenient to himself for meeting it, were reported by the joint committee to the house Tuesday morning and the report was accepted and transferred immediately to the senate, which concurred in the acceptance without a dissenting voice and with no delay. The matter was handled with more dispatch than is usual in the conduct of the legislature's affairs.

Senator Smith will leave Washington at 4:30 Wednesday and will arrive in Atlanta at 11 o'clock Thursday on the Birmingham special.

Servia Only Waiting for Proper Authorities to Open Discussions of Peace—Preliminaries With Bulgarians

(By Associated Press.)

SALONIKI, July 15.—The Greek commander reports that Bulgarian troops fleeing before the advance of the Greeks yesterday burned the village of Doxat, south of Drama, and massacred 500 of the inhabitants.

Heavy fighting ensued, by which the Greeks occupied Drama, 30 miles northeast of Seres. The Bulgarians fled in disorder, leaving seventy wagon loads of ammunition on the field.

Serbs Deny Report They Refused to Discuss Peace

(By Associated Press.)

BELGRADE, July 15.—The report that Servia refused to enter into peace negotiations with Bulgaria is without foundation. Servia is waiting only for the arrival of persons armed with full powers from Bulgaria to open the discussion of peace preliminaries. After their signatures have been attached to a demand for negotiations, hostilities will cease at once.

It is officially stated that quiet prevails today along the whole front except at Zayetchar, where some unimportant skirmishes have occurred.

MEXICAN SITUATION MAY BE REAL REASON FOR GARRISON'S TRIP

Rumor Says War Secretary Is More Concerned Over This Than With "Consolidation of Army Posts"

AMERICAN MEN-OF-WAR PATROL MEXICAN WATERS

European Powers Are Pressing State Department for Official Declaration Toward Huerta Government

(By RALPH SMITH.)

WASHINGTON, July 15.—Rumors are in circulation that Secretary of War Garrison's trip, on which he starts tomorrow, has much more to do with the Mexican situation than the talked of consolidation of army posts. The statement is made that army officers have been making secret trips throughout Mexico, investigating conditions, and that they report on a state of affairs that it is thought best for the secretary of war to spend some time personally inspecting the army now encamped along the frontier.

No admission of this is made by any responsible member of the administration. The president himself, while declining to go into details, does not hesitate to indicate his disbelief in the existance of any acute Mexican situation. Yet everybody was surprised when the secretary of war gave out the itinerary of his proposed trip for the inspection of army posts. It was difficult to harmonize the alleged object of his journey with a tour running directly from Washington through the south to the Mexican boundary, leaving some of the most important army posts in the country unvisited.

VISITS FRONTIER POSTS

Although Secretary Garrison is going out for the announced purpose of looking into the matter of which army posts to abandon, it is admitted at the war department that there is no intention to abandon the camps along the Mexican line. Yet these are some of the places Secretary Garrison will first inspect. In fact, if some of the collateral pieces of information current here mean anything they indicate that the camps along the Mexican frontier are to be strengthened rather than depleted.

It has been known to the state and war department for a long time that any moment may see a demonstration against Americans in Mexico that will compel action by the United States government.

Within the past few days another exodus of Americans from Mexico started. These are people who had their all invested in Mexico and had been hanging on in the hope that they might save their property. Still others are remaining in that country and are keeping an armed guard over their possessions, not knowing what moment they will be compelled to fly for their lives.

It is the opinion of officials here in the American government if American are killed as American and because they are Americans, even the Mexican government is powerless to protect them, the United States will have to.

It is the dread of such a possibility—a possibility as imminent—that is believed to be the principal motive behind the secretary's trip.

POWERS PRESS BRYAN.

Already one of the great European powers, through its diplomatic representatives, has called the attention of Secretary Bryan to the chaotic condition in Mexico and the effect upon the welfare and safety of its citizens there, with a polite inquiry as to what the United States proposes to do about it.

Whether the inquiry was part of a concerted movement on the part of European powers to bring the state department to a declaration of its purpose toward Mexico did not develop today, though the City of Mexico, however, would appear to warrant that conclusion.

Until now President Wilson has attached little importance to rumors of outside influences being brought to bear to cause the United States to recognize the Huerta regime.

It is beginning to be apparent now that there must very soon be some official declaration on the subject to reassure the European powers of the protection of their citizens and subjects against loss by the continuance of the present uncertainty. Such a declaration, some officials fear the European powers may feel themselves free to take steps on their own account.

WARSHIPS ON GUARD.

American warships continue to stand guard over the interests of the Mexican gulf and Pacific ports. The battleship South Carolina swings at anchor in the harbor of Tampico and the battleships Minnesota and New Hampshire are at Vera Cruz. The Michigan and Louisiana are en route to join them, and by the arrival of the Minnesota will return north. Three vessels will remain on duty constantly in the two gulf ports, while the fourth will serve as a relief. Officers and men of the several vessels opportunity for shore leave at Galveston, Tex. On the Pacific side the cruiser Pittsburg is at Guaymas and the Denver is at Topolobampo.

TENTATIVE BUDGET CUTS COLLEGE FROM $100,000 TO $85,000

Other State Institutions Get Little If Any More Than Was Appropriated Them Last Year

STRICTEST ECONOMY PRACTICED THROUGHOUT

Policy Outlined by Subcommittee Will Probably Be Adopted by Committee of the Whole

Rigid economy characterizes the general appropriations bill recommended Tuesday afternoon to the appropriations committee of the house by the subcommittee appointed to make a tentative draft of the bill.

All appropriations fixed by the state constitution and by law, such as the salaries for state officials, judges of the supreme and appellate courts, the per diem and mileage of members of the general assembly, the salaries for clerks, stenographers and employes of these various departments, are carried in the bill.

Appropriations for the various state institutions are based in the main upon the regular appropriations allowed them by the last legislature. Very few increases are allowed to the maintenance funds of these institutions.

AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE CUT.

The principal cut made by the subcommittee is in the appropriation to the State College of Agriculture, at Athens. The last regular appropriation to this college amounted to $100,000 per year, of which amount $40,000 was appropriated to be used exclusively for extension work, such as the operation of the agricultural train and other enterprises. In the present bill, as drafted by the sub-committee, the sum of $85,000 is set aside for the State College of Agriculture, of which amount $26,000 must be expended for extension work.

It will be seen that there is a cut of $15,000, which is taken altogether from the extension work fund.

When this issue of The Journal went to press, the tentative draft of the appropriation bill was being read to the [illegible]. Large delegations from the various institutions and state and others interested in obtaining state aid were present to lay their claims before the committee.

There may be some slight amendments to the bill as drawn. The committee, however, is apparently in accord on the policy of economy and if there are any amendments they will be few and will not greatly increase the total amount appropriated.

THE LEADING ITEMS.

Principal among the annual appropriations carried in the tentative bill are the following:

For the support and maintenance of the academy for the blind at Macon, and for the salaries of its officers and attaches, $20,000.

For the support and maintenance of the Georgia School for the Deaf and Dumb at Cave Spring and for the pay of its officers and attaches, $45,000.

For the support and maintenance of the Georgia sanitarium at Milledgeville and for the salaries of its officers and attaches, including $2,500 each year for the salary of the resident physician, $100,000.

For the support and maintenance of the Soldiers' home of Georgia, at Atlanta, and for the pay of its officers and attaches, $25,000.

For the support and maintenance of the Georgia State Sanitarium for the treatment of tuberculosis patients, located at Alto, $20,000.

For the maintenance and support of the State University at Athens, $52,500.

For the University of Georgia for the payment of interest on the land script fund, $6,314.14.

For the payment of the annual interest due by the state to the University of Georgia, $8,000.

For the University of Georgia for the maintenance of the summer school at

Small Boy Is Kicked by Horse, Another Is Kicked by a Mule; One Dies; Other May Not Live

Robert Stewart, Aged 9, Instantly Killed in West End, Jesse Barryhill, Aged 5, Seriously Hurt on Marietta Street

Two small boys were kicked in the head, Tuesday, within half an hour of each other, one by a mule and the other by a horse. One was killed outright, and the other's condition is grave. The two accidents happened in widely separated parts of the city.

Robert Stewart, aged nine, son of Mrs. Ella Stewart, 93 Ella street, fell from a horse that he was riding, near the corner of Wells street and Stewart avenue, in West End. The animal kicked him on the head, killing him instantly.

Jesse Barryhill, aged five, whose parents live on Bellwood avenue, was playing in the yard at 808 Marietta street, when he loose mule ran by, kicking him on the head. The animal's hoof landed squarely over the child's left eye, fracturing the skull and causing a serious injury upon the brain. Surgeons at the hospital were expecting to operate at 2 o'clock in the hope of saving the boy's life. The accident happened shortly after 1 o'clock.

Senator Bristow Introduces Amendment Aimed at Secretary's Lecture Statement

WASHINGTON, July 15.—Senator Bristow introduced a resolution today aimed at Secretary Bryan's recent statement that he was obliged to go on a lecture tour because of an insufficient official salary calling on President Wilson to report what salary would be sufficient to enable Mr. Bryan to remain permanently at his post. Objections of Democratic senators prevented its immediate consideration.

JOHN P. GRACE TO JOIN BLEASE AGAINST SMITH?

Supporter of Governor Says Charleston Mayor Will Support Supposed Enemy

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

HENDERSONVILLE, N. C., July 15.—A possibility that Mayor John P. Grace, of Charleston, and Governor Cole L. Blease, of South Carolina, will bury the hatchet, and of the Charleston executive throwing the weight of his political influence to the governor in his race for the United States senate in 1914 against Senator E. D. Smith was the significant opinion advanced by a prominent Blease lieutenant who is spending his vacation in the mountains.

This explained, if true and backed up by any foundation, will change the outlook for the next senatorial fight in the Palmetto state and make more uncertain what every one now conceded to be a race the outcome of which no one can forecast with any degree of accuracy.

ONCE A BLEASE SUPPORTER.

Mayor Grace was largely responsible for the election of Governor Blease in 1910, when Charleston's majority gave him the governorship over Mr. Featherstone. The governor appointed Mr. Grace a member of his staff. Directly after his first inauguration, however, a breach between Governor Blease and Mayor Grace developed over the appointment of dispensary constables in Charleston, and this breach finally brought about an open break. In the campaign of 1912 Mayor Grace was a militant supporter of Judge Ira B. Jones, who unsuccessfully contested for Governor Blease's seat. The enmity became bitter, and the governor, in several stump speeches, excoriated the Charleston mayor.

There has been gossip in the Palmetto state of a possibility of Mayor Grace entering the senatorial campaign next summer with Governor Blease and Senator Smith, but the suggestion advanced by the Blease lieutenant here today puts an entirely new complication in the matter. This leader did not venture the suggestion of active support for Governor Blease by Mayor Grace, but rather a passive assistance and all the personal influence of the Charleston executive.

The enmity between the governor and the mayor of South Carolina's metropolis is well known, and the suggestion of a possibility of the burying of the hatchet will come with surprise.

SMITH SQUARELY IN RACE.

Governor Blease's declaration in a speech in North Carolina a few days ago to the effect that he understood Senator E. D. Smith was going to be given a good berth by President Wilson and that former Governor D. C. Heyward was going to be run in as his opponent in the race for the Junior Senatorship next summer brought forth a vigorous declaration from Senator Smith that he expected to stand for reelection and was confident of being reelected. Governor Blease told his North Carolina audience that he was going to the senate; that in addition to the votes of his friends he was going to get thousands of votes from former opponents. He asserted positively that there is not the slightest doubt about his defeating Senator Smith.

In a public statement in Spartanburg not many days ago in giving his reasons for believing that he easily would defeat Senator Smith, Governor Blease said he would get the votes of lots of people who "wanted to get him out of the State." He figures that this vote added to what he will receive from his followers will give him the victory in a walk.

United States Senator E. D. Smith beyond saying that he was a candidate for re-election made no criticism of Governor Blease or of the record he has made since holding his present office. This, say his friends, is good politics for it is keeping the governor in the dark as to his campaign material and

Took Her Rye Liquor Straight And Thrashed Jasper N. Smith, Claims Mrs. Sallie Alexander

Henry County Woman, 66 Years Old, Testifying in Crawford Case, Tells Rich and Racy Story of Some of Her Adventures

The testimony of Mrs. Sallie Alexander, of Henry county, and her dramatic story of a fight she had with Colonel Jasper N. Smith, of the House-that-Jack Built fame, featured Tuesday's hearing of the famous Crawford will case, which was resumed before Auditor James L. Anderson.

Mrs. Sallie Alexander has led a more or less enjoyable existence for the past sixty-six years. Now her face is worn and wrinkled, and her body is bent with age. She has apparently retained her facilities remarkably well, and her fight with "Jack Smith" was an vivid in her mind Tuesday as it was years ago, when it occurred.

In the course of her cross-examination by Reuben R. Arnold, Mrs. Alexander was asked if she were not the lady who fought Colonel Smith.

"Yes," she stopped, "and I would do it again if he tried to impose on me."

"Did you whip him?" asked Mr. Arnold.

"KNOCKED HIM DOWN."

"Well, I knocked him down," was the quick response.

"Didn't you beat him up then?" was the next question.

"No, I couldn't. He ran like the devil."

Then, as an after thought the witness declared, "Tom Donaldson's dogs couldn't have caught him."

"Well, describe the fight," said the attorney.

Mrs. Alexander rose in her chair, and holding up her right arm with her first tightly clinched, she said:

"Well, I put my whole weight on this right arm and brought it over and caught him right here. (Indicating the right temple.)

"What happened then?" asked Mr. Arnold.

"He fell to the ground like a beef, and got up running like a rabbit," answered the witness from Henry county.

Mrs. Alexander had been called to the witness stand to testify about the life together of the late Joshua B. Crawford and his first wife, Mrs. Nancy E. Crawford, whose estate certain heirs are seeking to wrest from Crawford's widow, Mrs. Mary Belle Crawford, his second wife.

"THEY KEPT A JUG."

She often visited her aged friends about fourteen years ago, she told the court.

She was asked specifically about the convivial habits of the two, since one of the charges brought in the will case is that Crawford was drunk, when he married Mrs. Mary Belle Crawford.

"They always had a jug in the house," Mrs. Alexander told the court as a reminiscent smile played about her face. "But Nancy kept it locked up so Josh wouldn't get too much." "She let him have a dram sometimes when friends were there."

"Did you ever take a drink with him?" asked Attorney Arnold.

"I ain't one of these prophets," returned the witness, "and I take my dram when I want it."

"Did Josh fuss with Nancy, when she wouldn't let him get the jug?" asked the attorney.

"Yes, he would fuss but he wouldn't fight," said the witness, "and sometimes he would slip off to the saloons."

"Did you drink rye or corn?" was another question.

"Rye," was the quick response.

"Well didn't Josh like his in a toddy, a little sugar and water?"

"I don't know about Josh," the witness returned, "but like mine like the Lord sends it."

"Straight you mean," said the attorney as the court roared.

RECEIVER ORDERED FOR OFFICERS OF TRUST CO.

Personal Property of S. E. Smith and H. S. Miles Held Up by Court's Order

A receiver for the personal property of S. E. Smith, president, and H. S. Miles, secretary and treasurer of the Guarantee Trust and Banking company, was ordered Tuesday by Judge J. T. Pendleton, of the superior court, in order that the property of the officers might be subject to the claims of the creditors of the company. J. D. Robinson, who was recently named receiver for the company, is made receiver also for the individual estate of the two officers.

The amount of the property held by Mr. Smith, which was placed in the hands of the receiver for the court, was, approximately $10,000, and the amount of the property of Mr. Miles was about $15,000. Practically everything that either of the gentlemen is known to possess was included in the order.

Certain stock in the International Tape company, held by Dr. S. W. Foster, chairman of the board of directors of the concern, also was orderd in the hands of the receiver.

Smith and Miles are enjoined from disposing of any of their property. The petition upon which the individual estates of the president and the secretary of the Guarantee Trust were placed in the hands of a receiver alleges that both were practically penniless before the trust company was organized several years ago and that for property they now possess was purchased with funds either wrongfully acquired from the company or paid to themselves in exorbitant salaries.

The effort to include the personal property of the three men in the assets against which the notes and bondholders and other creditors of the company can file claims, was fought vigorously, and the trial before Judge Pendleton has been in progress several weeks. The arguments, which consumed the last two days, were made by Albert Howell and C. T. Hopkins for the plaintiffs, and Morris Brandon, Henry Peeples and George M. Napier for the officers of the company.

Several weeks ago Judge Pendleton placed the Guarantee Trust and Banking company, with admitted assets of over $400,000, and alleged liabilities of nearly $1,000,000, in the hands of J. D. Robinson, as receiver.

Shortly after the company was placed in the hands of the receiver the Fulton grand jury indicted S. E. Smith and H. S. Miles on five counts, two felonies and three misdemeanors.

The principal charges were paying unearned dividends in violation of the state laws, and having back with the company's funds the stock of dissatisfied holders. They made bonds for $5,000 each.

Father and Two Sons Who Ate Two Gallons Of Ice Cream May Die

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

WAYCROSS, Ga., July 15.—After eating two gallons of ice cream, H. Friedman and two sons were this morning taken seriously ill and fears are entertained for their recovery. They were trying to get "enough" ice cream the children, it is said, having told their father they never had been able to get as much as they could eat.

QUICK ACT OF CONGRESS TO SETTLE TRAINMEN ROW

Passes Both Houses of Congress and May Become Law by Night

WASHINGTON, July 15.—The Newlands bill, revising the Erdman law to provide arbitration of wage disputes in a manner satisfactory to railroads and their employees, passed the house today without a roll call and was hurried to the senate which was waiting to pass it for President Wilson's signature.

The senate passed the Newlands bill without a roll call, and it was hurriedly prepared for transmission to the White House, where President Wilson was ready to sign it.

President Wilson has said he would sign the measure immediately. Meanwhile there is a truce between the railroads and their men. Both sides have agreed to submit their differences to arbitration under the new terms that will be provided.

With the passage of the new law, the selection of a government commissioner of mediation is the next step. He is to be appointed by the president and will hold office seven years. Among those whose names are being discussed for the place are Martin A. Knapp, now presiding judge of the commerce court; Dr. Charles P. Neill, former commissioner of labor, both of whom have been identified with the settlement of wage disputes under the old Erdman act; and William Lea Chandler, who also has served as a mediator under the law.

TWO AMENDMENTS.

Two amendments were determined on by the house judiciary committee. The senate was expected to accept them without delay.

One aims to make impossible any construction that would authorize courts, by injunction or otherwise, to compel an employe to labor.

In its perfected form the new law would furnish machinery expected to open the possibilities of arbitration and federal mediation.

The new law would establish the "United States board of mediation and conciliation," to consist of a federal "commissioner of mediation and conciliation" and two other officials of the government to be designated by the president. This board could be appealed to to intervent in a railroad labor dispute by either party, and would first use its best efforts, by mediation and conciliation, to bring the disputants to an agreement. Failure would be followed by an attempt on the part of the board to "induce the parties to submit their controversy to arbitration," and in case arbitration was agreed to, special boards of either three or six members would be chosen by the railroads and the employes.

Arbitration under the new law would be undertaken only after a definite agreement had been made by both parties to abide by the decision of the arbitration board for a stated period.

REHEARING IS GRANTED ON SCHOOL BIBLE BILL

Some Preachers For It, Others Opposed—Dr. Ogden Makes Statement

As a result of the official protest of three leading Atlanta churchmen, senate bill No. 22, requiring the reading of the Holy Bible as a part of the common school system of Georgia, was recommitted to the committee on education Tuesday morning.

Rabbi David Marx of the Jewish Synagogue, Rev. C. B. Wilmer, pastor of St. Luke's church, and Father George S. Rapier, president of Marist college, called in a body on President Randolph Anderson, of the state senate, Tuesday morning to urge the recommitment of the bill in order that the ministers might be heard on it.

When the bill came up for its third reading Senator A. H. Foster, of the Twenty-seventh, chairman of the education committee, moved that it be returned to that committee. The motion was passed unanimously.

OTHERS FAVOR BILL

A number of ministers who occupied seats in the back of the senate chamber in expectation of hearing the discussion on the bill then left the hall.

Among them were Rev. H. M. DuBose, pastor of the First Methodist church, and Rev. G. W. Young state superintendent of the Georgia Anti-Saloon league. When asked for their opinion on the measure both of these gentlemen declared that they were highly in favor of it.

"The Bible should be read because it is God's word," said Dr. DuBose.

Senator Foster has not yet appointed a time for the hearing on the bill. He says he will have to confer first with other members of the committee. A hearing will very likely be set for Wednesday or Thursday, certainly some time this week, according to the senator.

A number of prominent Atlanta women also were in the senate chamber to listen to the debate.

The local ministers seem to be divided on the question of Bible reading in the schools. Dr. Wilmer, Rabbi Marx, and Father Rapier are all against the measure as it now stands.

DR. OGDEN MAKES STATEMENT

Other ministers have vigorously espoused the bill. Rev. Dunbar H. Ogden, pastor of the Central Presbyterian church, issues a statement in which he favors reading the Bible in the schools.

Dr. Ogden's statement follows in full:

"Intolerance is the one thing that we must not tolerate. Worse than an intolerant majority is an intolerant minority. The majority should not trample under foot the conscientious convictions of a minority; neither should a minority be permitted to defeat policies that are held by the majority to be for the public good.

"To intelligently determine whether the Bible should be read in the public schools two distinct questions must be considered. Apart from the issue of conscience, is it wise to have the Bible read in the schools? Is violation of conscience a necessary part of the policy?

SCHOOLS FAIL IN CHARACTER.

"The one outstanding failure of the public schools is in the realm of character. The Bible, the supreme authority in this realm, is the one book banished from the public schools. Many thoughtful men are wondering if there is any connection between the banishment and the failure.

"The reverent reading of a portion of the Bible each day, without comment or theological discussion, would undoubtedly have a deep and abiding influence upon the moral character of the boys and girls. Consider the place in our civilization of the Ten Commandments, the Psalms, the Sermon on the Mount, the Thirteenth Chapter of First Corinthians. Surely the state in assuming responsibility for the education of the children should see to it that the very best elements in character building are provided.

"I do not speak of the folly of banishing the greatest literature of the world from the literary schools. The supreme elements in the Bible are spiritual and moral. To claim a place for it merely as literature is to becloud the issue.

THEOLOGY NOT NEEDED.

"While we do not and should not have theological tests in the selection of school teachers, we do and should have moral tests. No one who is unable to reverently read a passage of Scripture in the hearing of our boys and girls is fit to guide their minds in the formative period of life.

"To avoid the violation of the conscience of any citizen, the principal of the school should have the authority to excuse from attendance upon the reading any child whose parents requested it upon the ground of conscientious scruple."

CITIZEN TELLS MAYOR OF VISITS TO RESORTS

An investigation was ordered by Chief of Police Beavers Tuesday morning of a charge made by some citizen to Mayor Woodward that he (the citizen) had seen members of the police force entering a certain alley in the city, the alley being one that leads to a negro settlement of doubtful character.

"I have given instructions to all members of the force to keep a close surveillance over negro houses whose repute is bad," said the chief, "and I am disposed to believe that this citizen, whoever he is, saw men going into that alley in the discharge of that duty."

THREE LIVING WIVES, ONE DEAD, IS CHARGED

Miss Grace Bradshaw has filed a petition in the superior court to have her marriage to I. L. Davis annulled.

She alleges that after she had married and lived with Davis for a year she found that he had two other living wives and had buried a third. He has secured a divorce from neither of his wives, she asserts.

On account of his several alleged marriages, Davis, who is sometimes known as "Ivory York," has been indicted by a Fulton county grand jury for bigamy. He is said in the petition to reside at 607 Marietta street.

Just what property it is the papers don't specify, but it is believed to consist largely of lots and dwellings—small properties, for the most part.

JAPANESE BUSINESS MEN FIND SENTIMENT FRIENDLY

Only Hostile Feeling Is in California, They Say, After Touring States

(By Associated Press.)

SAN FRANCISCO, July 15.—Dr. Seyeda, former Japanese vice minister of fiance, and his colleague, T. Kamiya, an official of the Tokio chamber of commerce, sailed for Japan today, after a tour of the United States.

The Japanese government will try to obtain for Japanese the privilege of becoming American citizens, he said.

"The Japanese want citizenship, and want to become a constructive, patriotic, up building element of your society," he explained. "We do not want to intermeddle in domestic questions, such as states rights and federal jurisdiction; we only petition and make representations and we hope it shortly will come to pass that there will be no discrimination against the Japanese, who desire to come here to work and live."

Kamiya suggested that negotiations at Washington between the state department and Ambassador Chinda had created a very delicate situation.

We do not think war is probable," he said. "If it comes, it comes through the action of the United States. The Japanese have never fought and do not hope to fight through imperialistic motives but only when their national honor is involved. But when it becomes a shame to be a Japanese, we cannot tell what will happen."

The body contains phosphorus sufficient to make 483,000 matches. Phosphorus is one of fourteen elements composing the body—divided among bones, flesh, nervous system and other organs. The perfect health of body requires a perfect balance of the elements. These elements come from the food we eat—the stomach extracts and distributes them.

But if stomach is deranged—the balance of health is destroyed and the blood does not carry the proper elements to the different organs, and there is blood trouble—nerve trouble—heart trouble. MRS. CRAWFORD'S MARRIAGE ILLEGAL, SAY HEIRS

Charges Made That She Remarried Before She Obtained Divorce

The prosecution of Mrs. Mary Belle Crawford, who has been charged by a warrant with the murder of her husband, J. B. Crawford, who died in 1909, will, it has been learned, attack the validity of her marriage in the criminal prosecution as well as in the civil litigation.

It was alleged in the bill to remove Mrs. Crawford from her position as administratrix of the estate of her late husband, that she had not been properly divorced from a former husband, when she married Joshua B. Crawford a short time before his death. This charge is one of the principal grounds upon which the so-called Crawford heirs are seeking to wrest the estate, which is valued at $250,000, from Mrs. Crawford.

Attorney J. S. James, who represents C. Z. Crawford, who brought the murder charge against Mrs. Crawford, has inaugurated a search for Fred Lump, a New York barber, who was in Florida when J. B. Crawford and the woman, who afterwards became his wife, were married. Lump, it is alleged, will testify, if found, that Mrs. Crawford threatened Crawford even before they were married.

Mrs. Crawford has made a number of ventures on the matrimonial seas, and the bill which is being tried before an auditor now, charges that one of the former husbands disappeared mysteriously.

There can be no action in the criminal case against Mrs. Crawford until the grand jury meets.

Contrary to expectations the hearing of the Crawford case, before Auditor James C. Anderson was resumed Tuesday morning. This hearing has already been in progress two months.

WHOLESALERS WANT TAX ON NORTHERN SALESMEN

Claim That Salesmen From North and East Should Take Out Licenses

When the tax committee of council meets Wednesday afternoon a delegation representing the wholesale merchants and jobbers of Atlanta, who will hold a convention here in August, will go before that body in an attempt to get council to pass an ordinance requiring northern salesmen to take out a license when they come here during that convention.

It is the complaint of local wholesalers that last year at the convention the great amount of time and labor expended by the Atlanta dealers brought no return on account of the presence of these salesmen.

The local association pays the expenses of many small retailers all over the south in getting them to come to the convention. They expect to get some return in sales. They pay taxes in Atlanta and have the right to benefit by the Atlanta convention, they say.

But last year, they argue, salesmen from the big cities of the north and east came here at convention time, when all the small retailers were present, underbid the Atlanta merchants on many articles, played havoc with the market, and got the benefit of the local merchants' outlay.

The Atlanta merchants do not wish to exclude the salesmen altogether, but they do want them to pay some tax or license to do business here during the convention. The tax committee will be asked to recommend such an ordinance to council.

FAMOUS MORRIS TRIPLETS OF WEST END

Two snapshot views of Mary, Marion and Mason Morris, as they played on the front lawn of their home.

Mary, Marion and Mason Morris, the famous triplets of West End, lay on the grass and kicked up their heels.

"How old are you?" asked the photographer.

"We don't know!" they shouted in chorus. Their blue eyes twinkled mischievously, their white hair blew in the breeze, and the three little, chubby faces radiated smiles.

As a matter of fact, they are four and one-half years old. Mary, it is said, is four hours older than the two boys, and Marion is five minutes older than Mason. They are the children of Mr. and Mrs. G. N. Morris, of 130 Ashby street.

Marion and Mason are as alike as the holes in a couple of doughnuts. Mary you can recognize, but Marion and Mason defy placement. Yet in dispositions all three are as different as the winds of the world.

Marion has a keen sense of humor and like to climb trees. He will do what you tell him to with such promptitude that you have to watch your own orders. Everything is a huge joke to Marion and he himself is the funniest part of the whole merry jest.

Mason, on the contrary, has a temperament. He likes to sit still and consider gravely his five pink wiggly toes. His conception of the ridiculous is to see Marion fall out of the swing and he would rather blink at you like a wise little owl than tell you to "do it again," if you should happen to tickle him.

While as for Mary, her nurse calls her "the biggest boy in the bunch." No high tree climbed by Marion is too high for her and if Mason happens to smile mainly at her when she falls out she'll "mawl 'im."

The result is a happy family. Marion's recklessness is calmed by Mason's temperament, and Mason's aesthetic ideas are stirred up now and then by Marion's joviality; while both of them are kept continually on the hop taking care of Sister Mary.

MACON MAN, MOBILE GIRL MARRY AHEAD OF TIME

Joseph W. Hoage Persuaded Miss Vera England to Stay in Georgia

"What's the use of waiting all these years till next fall?" urged Joseph W. Hooge, of Macon, fiance of Miss Vera F. England, of Mobile, in Atlanta the other day. "You're in Georgia now. Why not just stay? Let's get married now."

And they did. They were wed Monday morning in the rectory of the Immaculate Conception church by Father Robert F. Kennedy, the pastor. And their honeymoon will be an extended automobile tour through south Georgia.

The engagement had been announced, with the wedding to take place in the fall. Miss England came to Atlanta with her mother, Mrs. G. K. England, to visit Charles W. England in Atlanta. Mr. Hooge availed himself of the opportunity to call upon his fiancee and urge his suit for the early wedding.

The ceremony Monday was witnessed by relatives and intimate friends of the happy couple. Miss Annye Hooge, of Mobile, sister of the bride, played the wedding march. The attendants were Mrs. J. H. DuBose, sister of the groom, as maid of honor, and Mr. C. W. England, brother of the bride, as best man.

MAY ASK EXPERTS TO EXAMINE ATLANTA MILK

Atlanta's milk supply was studied by the "house of representatives" of the Atlanta chamber of commerce Tuesday at 1 o'clock at a luncheon in the Piedmont hotel. That body consists of the chairmen of all committees of the chamber.

The subject was given point oy the report of the milk committee, published by the chamber and circulated among its members for some weeks past. The committee recommends two things—first, that a branch of the Walker-Gordon laboratory of Baltimore, for the certification of pure milk, be established in Atlanta; and second, that Dr. North, the famed expert on pure milk topics, be brought to Atlanta for a survey of the dairies from which the city's supply is drawn.

GEORGIA COTTON BUYERS ASK FOR UNIFORM BALES

North Georgia Buyers and Manufacturers Form Permanent Organization

The North Georgia Cotton Buyers and Manufacturers association is holding its first convention in this city. Some forty or more members are in attendance from North Georgia and Northwestern Alabama. The sessions are being held at the Hotel Ansley.

At the session Tuesday morning the association, which has hitherto been only temporary, voted itself a permanent organization, elected officers and appointed a committee to draw up a charter the by-yaws. The officers who held places under the temporary orgaiization were elected to the same positions in the permanent association. J. D. Moss, of Athens, Ga., was elected president, and C. B. Howard, of Atlanta, secretary and treasurer. Five vice presidents were elected from the territory covered by the association. They were: C. V. Truitt, LaGrange; J. T. Jennings, Atlanta; C. W. Smith, Cedartown; W. O. Jones, Elberton, and W. M. Harris, Hampton. These seven officers will form the executive committee of the association.

It is the purpose of this association to take up the matter of standardising the baling of cotton throughout the state and to fix some penalty for the non-conforming farmer. They believe a standard bale will benefit greatly both buyer and seller. This idea is not unanimous in the convention however, and there will be some discussion of it. It is also proposed to have weighers appointed and stationed throughout the state to check against buyer and seller.

The members hope to complete their work by Tuesday night.

MINCEY AFFIDAVIT NOT NEW TO THE SOLICITOR

State Officials Refuse to Consider Seriously Statement of Insurance Agent

Despite the claim that many witnesses to corroborate the assertions of W. H. Mincey, the insurance agent and school teacher who claims that Conley confessed to him, can be produced by the defense of Leo M. Frank, state officials refuse to consider seriously Mincey's testimony as an important element in the case.

Details of the Mincey affidavit are corroborated by E. F. Holloway, an employe of the National Pencil factory, who states that he remembers Mincey's visit to the scene of Mary Phagan's murder on the Tuesday following the crime.

Mincey states that he was told that no negroes were on duty at the factory on the day of the murder, although about eight of them were employed by the concern. He further detailed a conversation with a factory employe, who allowed him to look about the place that day.

Holloway says that he remembers the visit of a man who asked particularly about the negroes employed at the factory, and otherwise fully corroborates the details of the visit to the factory as given by Mincey.

Solicitor Dorsey, it was learned Tuesday, has known for some weeks that the Frank defense possessed the Mincey affidavit, and as a result he has made a vigorous probe of the affiant's past career, and of his movements on the day that Mary Phagan was murdered, the day that the negro Conley is supposed to have told him that he had killed a girl.

Solicitor Dorsey will not discuss his investigation of the man, but it is known that he does not consider the man's probable testimony as important.

The solicitor spent Tuesday morning examining a number of the state's witnesses, and he is spending practically his entire time in preparing the Frank case. He expects to be ready when the case is called on July 28, a week from next Monday.

GEORGIA VOTERS RATIFY NOMINATION OF BACON

First Senator to Be Chosen by Popular Election as New Amendment Provides

Formal ratification was being placed by the voters of Georgia Tuesday upon the Democratic primary nomination last fall of United States Senator A. O. Bacon as his own successor at Washington.

There was no opposition to the senator, and the voting was reported light throughout the state. The election was more of a perfunctory affair than otherwise, being counseled by the caution which foresaw a possible quibble in challenge of Senator Bacon's vote and seat upon important tariff and currency measures now pending. This caution was regarded as wise because the Democratic majority in the upper house is too slim to be imperiled by a technicality.

Senator Bacon's success at the polls was a foregone conclusion. The special election had been called by the present legislature for the sole purpose of choosing the next senator from Georgia.

In winning at the polls Tuesday Senator Bacon was to achieve the further distinction of being the first senator elected by popular vote under the new seventeenth amendment to the national constitution.

FINE LAGRANGE HOME DESTROYED BY FIRE

LAGRANGE, Ga., July 15.—LaGrange had its first large fire in several months last night, when the home of Mr. R. Y. Kellum, located at the corner of West Depot and South Lewis streets, was totally destroyed. The alarm was turned in about 3 a. m., and before the department arrived the entire building, a handsome frame residence, was enveloped in flames. By hard fighting on the part of the firemen the surrounding residences were saved. Explosion of the water tank in the kitchen and which lifted one side of the house in the air, caused much excitement during the progress of the fire. It is understood that the loss is fully covered by insurance. None of the household effects were saved.

GEROGIA AND HER POLITICS

Favors Special Session to Consider Tax Equalization

Representative Barry Wright, of Floyd, is heartily in favor of the enactment of legislation which will equalize taxes in Georgia, and he openly advocates a special session of the legislation for this purpose in the event the desired laws cannot be passed at the regular session.

"Tax revision, or rather tax equalization," is one of the most important problems facing the state," said Representative Wright Tuesday. "It is the duty of the legislature to speedily enact laws which will institue a fair and impartial revision. The question is such a big one that I am inclined to believe that the success of its solution would be better assured if the governor would call a special session of the legislature to consider this one matter and it alone."

Judge Carl Vinson Announces That He Will Run for Congress

Following closely upon his reappointment by Governor Slaton to the judgeship of the Baldwin county court for a term of four years, Judge Carl Vinson, of Milledgeville, makes the announcement that he will next year run for congress in the Tenth district. He promises a formal announcement of his views on public questions at the proper time.

The Tenth district is represented by Congressman Thomas W. Hardwick, one of the strongest men in the national house. Mr. Hardwick has not yet intimated whether he will seek re-election. There is quite a strong movement in the Tenth district to induce Colonel John T. West, of Thomson, to become a candidate in the event Mr. Hardwick does not make the race.

Judge Vinson has served two terms in the legislature and was last fall defeated for re-election to the house by J. H. Ennis. It was shortly after his defeat that Governor Brown appointed him to fill an unexpired term as judge of the Baldwin county court.

Georgia Legislature Is Invited To Attend Barbecue in Texas

When barbecues become the order of the summer months, as now, it is not surprising that the general assembly of Georgia should receive a number of invitations to "feeds," but when a bid to a "cut is sent from El Paso to the governor and the legislature it verges on the sublime or the ridiculous.

The invitation was read to the senate by President Randolph Anderson Monday morning, together with the reply sent by him.

The invitation was dated Saturday, and stated that "the Georgia Club of El Paso was holding its third annual barbecue Sunday." Governor, staff and legislature invited. It was signed by John M. Wyatt, H. N. Peacock, C. S. Services and Charles R. Russell.

President Anderson sent the following reply "The Georgia senate thanks you for your kind invitation and regrets that wireless transportation not yet being in existence, it can only send its greetings instead of appearing in person."

Appropriations Committee of House To Pass Upon Cochran's Resolution.

The appropriations committee of the house is expected to give consideration Tuesday to the resolution introduced several days ago by Representative R. O. Cochran, of Fulton, providing for a commission to investigate the agricultural conditions of the state and to examine closely into the work done by the agricultural institutions.

Speaking of his resolution and its object, Mr. Cochran says:

"A prominent business man of Atlanta stated to me a few days ago that he had been buying corn for twenty years and had never bought a bushel that was raised in Georgia. Can you see we have no home market?

"More important than any measure for measures that may come up before this legislature or any other legislature is the question of production. We cannot get money into our state unless we have something to sell; we cannot keep our money at home as long as we have to buy from foreign markets.

"The object of the resolution introduced to create a commission is to agitate and educate, to gather statistics and make recommendations to the 1914 session of the legislature and go deep into the agricultural and industrial interests of Georgia.

"This matter we are all vitally interested in as all our fortunes are inseperably linked with the producing agencies of the state."

A Florida Wolf is Out after Georgia Sheep.

"A Florida wolf has got his eye on Georgia sheep," remarked Assistant Commissioner of Agriculture Dan Hughes the other day as he handed over a letter to The Journal reporter.

This letter was from Robert L. Woolf, of Citrus Center, Fla., and in it Mr. Woolf stated that he was very anxious to obtain a number of sheep. He said he had been told that there were many sheep in Georgia.

Assistant Commissioner Hughes replied to the letter suggesting that if only a few sheep were wanted Commissioner Price could probably obtain them for him in Oconee county, but that if a large number was desired it would be necessary to send out Inquiries in North Georgia.

Lamar County Advocates Are Beginning to Arrive.

In anticipation of the hearing of the Lamar county proposition before the house committee on amendments to the constitution, residents of Pike, Monroe and Upson counties residing in the territory affected are beginning to arrive in Atlanta for the purpose of presenting their claims.

The usual fight against the creation of all new counties is expected by the advocates of Lamar and accordingly no stone has been left unturned by them to offset the efforts of their opponents.

Barnesville, named as the county seat of the proposed new county, is said to be the largest town in Georgia, save one, without a court house. The fight has been going on for eight years, but never with such thorough organization as at this session of the general assembly.

Fulton County Will Very Likely Get a Fourth Superior Court Judge.

A bill providing for a fourth superior court judge for Fulton county was introduced in the house Monday morning and during the afternoon of the same day it received a favorably report from general judiciary committee No. 2.

Representatives Smith, Cochran and Blackburn, of Fulton, the authors of this bill, are quite confident that it will pass both the house and senate. The Atlanta Bar association has indorsed the bill and it is generally admitted that the work of the Fulton superior court has increased to such an extent that a fourth judge is an absolute necessity.

The Noise Nuisance.

Noise, like smoke, was once considered a necessary evil, if not a prizable advertisement, in a growing city; but progressive opinion is fast banishing that fallacy. Excessive smoke, as we now realize, is not an evidence of industrial prosperity but of shortsighted, inefficient methods and also a menace to public health. Excessive noise is likewise, though more slowly, being condemned as a damaging and, for the most part, an unnecessary nuisance.

Many interesting facts in this connection have been developed through the anti-noise campaign recently begun by Indianapolis, Ind. A committee has reported after thorough investigation that eighty-five per cent of the noises in the vicinity of school buildings "are capable of being abated," and it urges action to this end on the ground that, while schools with closed windows are unhealthful, continual noise is almost fatal to successful teaching or study.

What is true of schools is correspondingly true of courts and, in a fair measure, of the public at large. Many Atlanta office buildings are damaged by the incessant clang and shriek of freight engines plying through the city's business center. Here is one instance at least where excessive noise can be and ought to be prevented. It has frequently been suggested that this switching be confined to certain hours of the night, or, better still, be transferred to a belt line beyond the community's commercial heart.

The Indianapolis committee recommends the creation of "zones of quiet," the regulation of heavy traffic and the repaving of certain thoroughfares with "noise-absorbing" material. This is a matter that is engaging more and more keenly the attention of alert municipalities, and doubtless the time will come when the city that tolerates unnecessary noise or smoke will be regarded as out-of-date as though it neglected its sewerage or water supply.

Grasshoppers are supplying the answer to the old query, "What's the matter with Kansas "

A Preposterous Attack On Freedom of the Press.

Seldom has there been so preposterous an effort to fetter the rightful freedom of the American press as that of a Tennessee judge who has sentenced the editor of the Memphis News-Scimitar to serve ten days in jail and to pay a fine of fifty dollars simply for having published an order issued in open court. It seems that there entered into the trial of a certain case an affidavit, the publication of which the judge forbade. The News-Scimitar printed his order to this effect, without, however, violating his instructions in regard to the affidavit itself; and for having done this, the editor of the paper has been adjudged guilty of contempt of court and given the maximum sentence.

Such an act deserves the condemnation of all citizens who value their right to free speech and a free press, those primal springs of pure and honest government. The question involved, it should be noted, was not whether the newspaper was at liberty to publish testimony which the court had ordered suppressed, but whether it was warranted in publishing the court's decree to that effect, a matter on which no inhibition had been placed. On the theory which this high-handed jurist now seeks to establish any individual who, chancing to be in court when such an order was issued, mentioned its contents in subsequent conversation, would be guilty of contempt and punishable by imprisonment and fine. Should a procedure like this be valid and generally resorted to, our courts of justice would soon become Star Chambers, with a tyrannous power "which no good man would want and which no bad man should be allowed to have."

The editor of the News-Scimitar has, of course, appealed to a higher court and, if the record of the case is correctly reported, there would seem to be no doubt that the unreasonable ruling of the judge in the first instance will be set aside. Any denial of the public's right to learn through the press what is transpiring at the seats of government is a blow not only to public intelligence but also against those principles on which rest human liberty and the hopes of this Republic.

There is this thing in Bryan's favor—Governor Blease has knocked him.

An occasional moonshine raid in North Georgia reminds us that the land up there still has moisture.

Although the price of grapejuice hasn't gone up, Secretary Bryan is like the rest of us—his salary won't quite go round.

The Popular Demand For Drainage in Georgia.

The reclamation of swamp and overflow lands in Georgia, far from being a subject of purely scientific interest, is one of intensely practical concern to hundreds of farmers and to the communities in which they live. From Whitfield county, for instance, there has come an insistent appeal for the government's aid in making drainage surveys of the country about Coahulla creek some miles east of Dalton. This stream overflows in such a way as to inundate or render useless thousands of acres along its banks. Land that is naturally very fertile is thus being kept from cultivation and its owners are suffering a loss which, indirectly at least, is reflected upon the entire community.

This is but one among many instances in every part of Georgia showing the demand for an adequate reclamation policy on the part of the State. Few individuals are able to solve such problems with their personal resources. Indeed, drainage enterprises are essentially public in their nature and require public initiative and support. The federal government has offered to spend five thousand dollars annually for a period of five years in making drainage surveys throughout Georgia, if the State will appropriate a corresponding amount. This is an opportunity which the present Legislature should seize, for it opens the way to the reclamation and the increased tax value of a vast area of land which is now yielding practically no return either to its individual owners or to the public treasury.

The people, and particularly the farmers, have awakened to the vital need and value of such drainage, realizing that it will release thousands of acres for agricultural development and will also protect the community's health against malaria and other diseases. This truth has taken a firm hold on the popular mind in north Georgia as well as in south Georgia; it appeals to merchants and manufacturers as well as to farmers. Few acts of the General Assembly would elicit approval so widespread as one that would make possible the carrying out of a Statewide program of swamp and overflowed land reclamation.

It's easy to fool the man who thinks he knows it all.

Fortunately for the summer girl the hammock cannot talk.

A Sorely Neglected Duty The State Should Perform.

It is a significant fact that the bill now before the Legislature providing for the establishment of an industrial school for wayward girls, has the earnest indorsement of the prison commission, the penitentiary committee of the House and scores of judges throughout the State. Indeed, everyone who has soberly observed the conditions which this measure is designed to remedy agrees that Georgia can no longer afford to neglect its duty in so important a field of social welfare and social justice.

The State established at Milledgeville some years ago a reformatory for incorrigible boys; and the practical service of that institution has been almost incalculable. It has meant the reclamation of many a youth who was drifting toward a life of habitual crime and who, had he been sent to prison or left to go his way unaided and uncheckered, would have become a grave peril to the community. From an economic standpoint alone it is vastly wiser to deal with crime in its embryo, instead of waiting till the full-fledged dragon is abroad. A dollar spent in the prevention of crime will save a thousand in its punishment.

A reformatory for delinquent girls is no less essential and will prove no less valuable than one for delinquent boys, yet Georgia has no such institution. The boy who shows criminal tendencies can be taken from the streets, placed under the State's helpful guardianship, disciplined and educated, and in due time sent forth capable of honest self-support and imbued with the elements of good citizenship. But the girl in similar circumstances is left to wander downward, as she will. There is no institution to which the courts may commit her. Her error may be due to environment, to lack of home training or to ignorant simplicity; they may be errors which intelligent discipline and inst uction could check and eradicate. Yet as conditions now are in Georgia, she is left to continue the path that leads to her own destruction and to some of the darkest problems with which society is burdened.

Little wonder that the judges of our courts, who are in daily touch with such issues, urge the establishment of an industrial school for girls of this character, or that the prison commission and the penitentiary committee of the House are equally emphatic in their plea for such an institution. The bill to this end which has been introduced by Messrs. Mills of Butts and Jones of Coweta is well considered and eminently practical. It is to be hoped that it will pass without difficulty or delay.

Training For Negro Girls

By Frederic J. Haskin

To serve and uplift the negro race by training its girls and young women to be good cooks and good laundresses is the purpose of the National Training School for Women and Girls—an awkward title for one of the most interesting experiments in vocational education yet made in this country. The primary object is not to train girls to be servants, but to train them so that if they do become servants they will be good ones, and if they become housewives in homes of their own they will be efficient there. To this end this school has subordinated the conventional three R's of the conventional school to the unconventional three R's of this particular school. To quote from the school catalogue: "The aim is to make practical use of the three R's—the Bible, the bathtub and the broom. The Bible is the text-book for all students, and by daily study and teaching students will be brought to value it as the best guide for action. The positive power of the bathtub in refining and developing one's physical powers is dwelt upon; physical cleanliness is required. The broom holds third place in importance in the practical scheme. The negro home is suffering more from the lack of women who know how to make and maintain a home than anything else. This school is established to train housekeepers and homemakers. Every student is taught how to work and must not be lacking in a disposition to do so. A clean life, a clean body and a clean home are all that the humblest member of the race needs to insure real advancement. We shall conform to the actual needs of the race regardless of present educational methods and notions."

This is a part of the pedagogical declaration of independence of Nannie H. Burroughs, who has established and built up this school unaided except by those of her own race whom she has inspired to assist her. Born in Washington thirty-six years ago, she grew up among her own people and attended the negro public schools of the national capital, graduating from the high school in the academic course and taking also a course in a business high school. With this equipment she became a stenographer in the office of a negro newspaper published in Philadelphia. After working there a year she went in the same capacity to Louisville to work in the office of the missionary department of the National Baptist convention, which is the negro branch of the Baptist church. She had more than a mere mechanical interest in her work and soon rose to be secretary of the women's missionary organization. Her duties took her all over the country and into negro homes in many cities. She decided that the women of her race were hopelessly handicapped by their ignorance of the elements of good housekeeping. She decided that the ordinary school education was a failure because it provided no training for a life work. She decided that she would do something. When she announced her plan to build a school to train housekeepers she met with no encouragement. The negroes said they had had enough of industrial training and wanted no Hampton or Tuskegee for their girls. But she persisted and finally was given, with much reluctance, the privilege of establishing her school under Baptist auspices if she would furnish the money.

Without so much as a dollar she began. She decided that Washington was the proper place for the school, midway between north and south, and easily accessible from the parts of the country where most of the negroes live. She found a site, an old farm house with a few acres around it that could be purchased for $6,500. That was in 1907. The first payment of $1,100 was raised by mail subscriptions solicited from the negro Baptist women. The school was begun in the farm house.

• • •

Six years have passed. The school now has an investment of $42,000, of which $37,000 has been paid. One building, costing $3,500, was donated by two white women. Every other penny has come from negroes, and from the earnings of the school itself. Most of the subscriptions were 50 cents or $1. The largest was $500. Hundreds were of only 5 cents.

• • •

The school plant has outgrown the old farm house, and now boasts of seven buildings, not pretentious but admirably equipped for their purposes and as clean as new pins. The school year just closed showed an attendance of ninety-two girls, coming from twenty-six states and five foreign countries.

• • •

The girls are taught to cook, to sew, to wash, to scrub, to be manicures and dairdressers and ladies' maids. They are also taught how to do all these things in a related and scientific manner, so that the joy of work well done is gained as a prize of industrial efficiency.

At 5:30 o'clock in the morning the rising bell rings. By 6 o'clock every girl must be in her place in chapel. After prayers each girl presents herself alone in a private room for inspection by the president. Her clothing must be in good order and perfectly arranged. The presence of a pin where there ought to be a hook-and-eye or a button means that that girl must go back to her room and make amends. A bit of unnecessary lace or ribbon taken off. Jewelry or perfumery means a hard day at scrubbing the dining room floor. The girls must be clean, must be neat and must be in the best possible condition for work.

• • •

Thus the day begins. Every bit of work done on the place is done by students and teachers. There are no servants. The cooking and washing and ironing and cleaning all is done by the students. For why try to teach girls to do these things and then hire somebody else to do them for the girls? Some of the girls work in the millinery shop, some in the hairdressing parlors, some at the manicuring table, some in the kitchen. All of them have their study hours in the ordinary common school branches that are required and all have their hour with the bible, together with lectures on sanitation, social service, etc.

• • •

A feature of the school is the "model home." It is the only thing in the school that is a gift from white people. Two Chicago women gave Nannie Burroughs $3,500 and she built the house. It is a bungalow-cottage affair—a wide, deep hall with a fireplace giving on a wide veranda and backed with a dining room, pantry and kitchen, while there are four bed rooms above stairs. Here the girls in the advanced classes come to demonstrate their work under "normal" conditions.

Shakespeare on the Stage

(Baltimore Sun.)

Aspiring actors can hardly be restrained from playing Shakespeare. Eddie Foy has always believed he would shine as "Hamlet," and Nat Goodwin contends to this day that "Midsummer Night's Dream," which played to $8.75 the closing night, was his masterpiece.

Mantell, Faversham, Power and a dozen others have proved that we have actors who can present Shakespears with ability worthy of the Bard. The only trouble in the past has been to find managers who would take the risk and audiences to put up $2 a seat to see "Hamlet," "Julius Caesar" or "King Lear." It seems to be dawning on the managers that rightly presented, Shakespeare will draw large audiences. The day may come when the immorial William will be among the "best sellers."

Motion Picture Opera

Ever since they became a regular form of entertainment there has been music incidental to the revelation of the moving pictures. Now a Viennese composer has written an operetta intended for use in the films only. The characters in it will not be heard. They will be seen, while an orchestra plays the music intended to illustrate their story. The wise composer has prepared his orchestra for a version of his work to be performed in the expensive moving picture theaters, while a piano accompaniment to the varying scenes will serve for more economical impressarios. This is the first instance of an operetta composed exclusively for the film playhouse.—New York Sun.

BUSINESS, POLITICS, AND THE PEOPLE

(Copyright, 1913, by Frank Crane.)

Since the clamant scandal about the lobby maintained by a business organization at Washington there has been a renewed expression of contempt and condemnation for politics and politicians.

This is wrong. The public thinks in ruts. We have been so used to calling politics dirty that we fly to the conclusion that anything is corrupt with which politics has to do.

On the contrary, it is because the politicians were in the affair that it is curable. Suppose there had been none, suppose the only powers at hand for the business clique to bribe had been a king and council, a bureaucracy or other small and unelected group? Then the same crimes would have been committed, the same privileges underhandedly procured, and the public could not help itself. But because it was necessary to corrupt officials depending upon votes of the people for their jobs the scandal is out, and the remedy, public opprobrium and the blasting of reputations, is at hand.

Politics is just as good as the people behind it. Even a bit better.

Behind the politicians are two classes: the general public, which is criminally indifferent, and the interested privilege seekers, who are criminally active.

The general public are deficient in civic conscience, do not realize that by proper organization they could relieve all their political evils, and by their narrow indifference hand all public concerns over to place seekers and grafters.

If they believed in self-government, trained their children in its arts, and actively took part in public matters, they would not have to hand the government of the country over to political parties, which invariably become stupid and corrupt engines operated by sharp and selfish manipulators.

Public indifference and distrust of democracy is the sin; the political party is its devastating curse and consequence.

Then comes Business.

It takes a long while for business to find out that fraud never pays, and that there are no stable profits but clean profits.

Time was when grocers sanded the sugar, and clothiers sold shoddy for honest woolen, and merchants lied steadily about their goods—asked two prices with the expectation of haggling and coming down—and the moto was "Let the buyer beware!"

That time has passed with the majority of American business men. They have found they can make more money in the long run by telling the truth and asking one price.

Salesmen are no longer expected to get the customer drunk, give him a rebate, or present him with a gold watch. It's poor business.

Big business, combined business, is just now learning the same lesson. Bribing legislators to secure tariff favors, bribing aldermen to get city franchises, winning and carousing and sneaking and doing dirt is just as fool business when conducted by a trust or national association as when practiced by the corner grocer.

American business men have astounded the world by their achievements. Not a gram of their success has been due to lobbyists and bribers. These vermin have always cost more than they come to. They have been the leeches upon the body of business.

And the sooner the business men of the country come to their senses and clean themselves of quasi-criminal methods, and do all business honestly, openly and aboveboard, the better.

Queered in the Start

(Albany Herald.)

The Macon Telegraph will not be satisfied until it discovers and develops an avowed candidate against Hoke Smith for United States senator.

For some time past it has been directing its more partisan than skillful diplomacy to an effort to bring out former Governor Joseph M. Brown as a senatorial candidate, but the former governor has evidently not warmed up responsively to the proposition, and now the Telegraph, through its Atlanta representative, shifts its anti-Hoke Smith campaign to Governor John M. Slaton and finds a teammate for him in the person of Colonel W. S. West, of Valdosta.

"West for governor; Slaton for the senate"—that's the combination.

This morning's Telegraph plays up its Atlanta correspondence in a "four-decker" front page heading as follows: "West for Governor; Slaton for the Senate—Boom Is Started in Atlanta for These Men—Is South Georgia's Man—Residents of Southern Part of State Point to the Fact That It's Been Ninety Years Since That Section Has Had the Governorship."

And here is the way the man on the Atlanta end of the job starts off his West-Slaton or Slaton-West—take your choice—boost:

A real sizeable and enthusiastic boom is under way here and 'round about the state for Colonel W. S. West, of Valdosta, as gubernatorial timber.

Men of political affairs are speculating over the possibility of Governor John M. Slaton as a possible—some insist more than probable—entry for the United States senate next year. There is a great deal of talk of that nature going on here at this time, and many believe the popular and handsome chief executive will be in the running.

Therefore, politicians are figuring on the possible succession in the gubernatorial office, and at present at least practically all that sort of talk is concentrated on the Valdosta man.

There are many good men in south Georgia and throughout the state who regard Colonel Bill West as good gubernatorial timber and would be glad to support him, but we warn him right now that if he really has ambition in that direction his chances have been "queered" by the Telegraph in its zeal to get a formidable candidate in the race against Hoke Smith for senator. The Telegraph's combination is too plainly an effort to keep up its fight on Hoke Smith and perpetuate the factionalism into which it has done so much to steep Georgia politics during recent years.

The Journal's Letter Box

Covington, Ga., July 12, 1913.

Editor The Journal:

Please allow me to congratulate you upon your editorial in Friday's Journal, "A Menace to Cotton Interest." I think this will be one of the worst pieces of legislation against the south that could possibly happen if the Clark amendment to the tariff bill should pass, leaving the farmer where he could not sell his cotton for future delivery, because the purchases could not hedge against the purchase, also it would leave our mills where they could not hedge against their sales of goods for future delivery. Having held the position as manager of telegraph company for years, I know the buyer and mill men must hedge on future purchases and sales of goods for future delivery. It is true there is some speculation in cotton, but no more than there is in other commodities, stocks, grain, oil, etc.

This bill means that the price of cotton will be dictated by Europe, because Europe is always the buyer, and no law will prevent them from hedging contracts in Liverpool or Bremen. On the other hand, the American must offer his cotton in a market where he cannot hedge. Yours very respectfully,

W. S. SCRUGGS.

MYRICK ADDRESSES SOLONS ON BANK SYSTEM'S NEEDS

Editor of "Southern Farming" Advocates Division of Personal and Realty Credits

A definite division of personal credits from realty credits, and the provision of a distinctive type of bank for either class of credit, were advocated before the Georgal legislature at noon Tuesday by Herbert Myrick, president of "Southern Farming," the Orange Judd publication circulated from Atlanta. Both houses of the general assembly met in joint session to hear Mr. Myrick's address.

Mr. Myrick based his view of the matter upon principles which have been established "by long and stern experience."

First, that current credits in banking must be based upon assets which can be converted quickly into cash; and

Second, that permanent credits must be based upon equally permanent obligations; and

Third, that to mix the two forms is so risky as to invite disaster.

In commercial banking, said he, the current deposits usually furnish 75 to 85 per cent of the bank's funds. Therefore the bank must lend those funds so that they are being paid back constantly—so that they are circulating, like water in a pipe, and always are on top. If the commercial bank invests heavily in long mortgages on real estate it cannot sell those mortgages to meet withdrawals of current deposits. Therefore they should not invest in relatively permanent mortgages in real estate. "This rule is the only safe one for commercial banking," said Mr. Myrick, "whether under national or state law."

"On the other hand," he continued, "real estate mortgages upon a proper basis of valuation and terms of repayment, constitute the safest of all permanent investments. This class of business requires a special type of bank to finance it. Savings banks and trust companies may loan their long-term deposits safely on real estate. Well secured mortgages on improved town or country real estate form also an excellent investment for the funds of individuals, trustees, insurance companies and other permanent investors.

"Southern farmers do not like to mortgage their land. They prefer to pay extravagant interest for seasonal advances or for personal loans. The red tape and expense of mortgaging land are burdensome.

"The south's needs are for a new system whereby the farmer may mortgage his land at a reasonable rate of interest upon long terms, with the privilege of making a payment upon the principal each year.

"Another need is for local co-operative rural banks. This can be filled only by encouraging the country people to make small savings and then co-operate to lend those savings in small amounts to their fellow depositors for productive purposes. This calls for an increase in the number of depositors and in the volume of deposits in all existing financial institutions."

Mr. Myrick concluded his address by inviting attention of the legislators to a suggested standard bill for the creation of co-operative commercial banks for personal credits and of co-operative land banks for realty credits. He advocated the adoption of some measure similar to that standard bill, applying to Georgia the principles which he had enunciated.

VANDALS ROB CAMPS OF TOOLS, SAYS E. E. DYSARD

Will Ask Sewer Committee of Council for Protection of Construction Camps

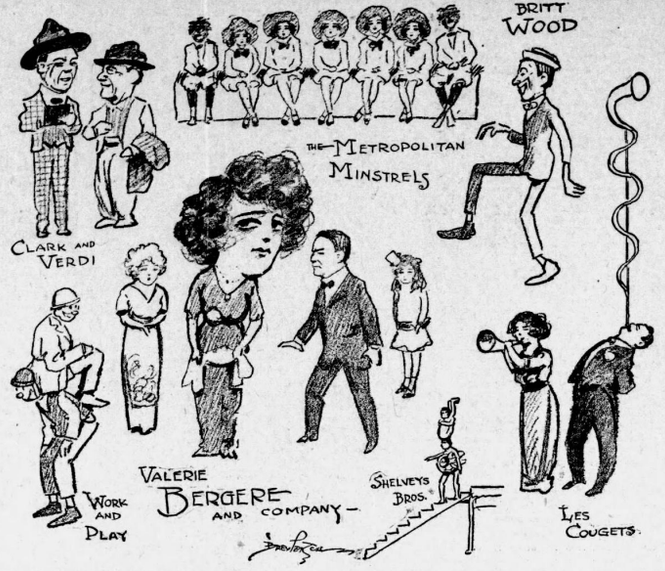
E. E. Dysard, of the Dysard Construction company, which has the contract for work on all city sewers, will go before the sewer committee of council when it meets Tuesday afternoon, to complain of certain robberies which he says have been going on nightly at his various construction camps.

Vandals, says Mr. Dysard, have been stripping several of his camps with regular persistence for months past of all valuables, including tools, brass fittings, lanterns, steam gauges, and other instruments.

He says that he has complained to the police without avail. Monday night, says Mr. Dysard, his camp on the corner of Moreland avenue and Ormewood avenue, was robbed of a brand new tent and all the tools in the tool box. He says that his foreman had to come to town to get new tools before the work could go on.

Mr. Dysard will ask that the city give some protection to the camps at night, or that the police be officially requested to furnish guards for all of them.

WITH CARTOONIST BREWERTON AT THE FORSYTH



IN LOCAL THEATERS

FORSYTH—Vaudeville.
GRAND—Motion Pictures.
BIJOU—Tabloid Musical Comedy.

On the front row at the Forsyth Monday night sat the man who is noted for the most equable temper in Atlanta. He never changes. He's always on a crouch. As act after act came and went, leaving the audience immersed in chuckles or cynically silent, this man's face retained its lemon-sour expression. About the middle of the program he sat up, his eyes brightened, a smile began at the corners of his mouth, and cracked his face till it touched his ears.

Across the stage five maidens tripped. They were clad in black hats, white suits that stopped somewhat short of the knees on the right side (of course you know which the right side is) and white socks and black slippers. The man with the equable temper had not lived in vain.

On the bill these girlie, girlie, girlies appear as the Metropolitan minstrels. They are supported by a couple of black-face comedians. But the latter pale into insignificance before the damsels. They are every one of them peaches; they can sing, they can dance, they can fill the front row with baldheaded men six nights in the week.

The more serious side of the bill is comprised in a sketch of Valerie Bergere entitled "Judgment." It is moral without being depressing, and pleased the audience.

Britt Wood and his harp brought down the house. He is the same old Wood who has delighted local audiences time and again, and his music this time is contagious with melody.

A European music novelty, Shelvey brothers, contortionists; Clark and Verdi, character comedians, and Work and Play, the jesting gymnasts, round off a bill that is a great improvement over the offerings that have been seen at the Forsyth of late.

WATCHED BURGLAR, AND THEN CALLED POLICE

The burglar who did $10 worth of glass cutting upon a window of Sharp's drug store at the junction of Walton and Marietta streets, early Tuesday morning, and got $5 from the cash register for his trouble, had no suspicion that he was being watched at his task.

Two alert and timid citizens did watch him, however. They notified police headquarters eventually, but when officers arrived the intruder and the drug store's $5 were gone.

Citizens across the street from the store saw the burglar cut the glass of the store window, lift it out and enter. They related afterward that for 15 minutes they tried to get headquarters on one telephone, without even so much as "waking" central. Then they got to another telephone and delivered their message, but it was too late.

FATE OF BARROW COUNTY IN SENATE COMMITTEE

Committee on Constitutional Amendments Takes Up the Measure Wednesday

The fate of the movement to create the new county of Barrow, with Winder as the county seat, will probably be decided by the senate committee on constitutional amendments when it meets Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The Barrow county bill passed the house by a large majority and its friends are making a hard fight for it in the senate, while its opponents are waging a most active campaign against it.

As far as can be judged at this time, the senate is about evenly divided on the question, and a unanimous report from the committee on constitutional amendments—whether it be favorable or unfavorable—will doubtless be adopted by the senate.

In the event that the committee is divided and majority and minority reports are returned, the outcome is problematical. Friends of the movement profess to be confident that Barrow county will be created, and that the bill will pass the senate by a good majority.

The report of the house committee on constitutional amendments recommending the enactment of the bill which provides for the creation of Candler county, with Metter as the county seat, will be voted upon in the house Wednesday, and it will probably pass that body.

BOARDING HOUSE FIRE RUNS BOARDERS OUTDOORS

In variegated attire, hastily donned, the boarders of Mrs. J. Sutton, 55 Lickle street, escaped into the summer morn, Tuesday at 4:30 a. m., when fire burned that roof from above their heads. The damage amounted to about $200. No one surmised the origin of the fire, which started somewhere in the attic of the two-story house.

Thick smoke in the house awakened the first of the boarders, and the alarm was given. Several people were forced into the street in their night clothes.

MRS. ENGLETT PLEADS FOR SCHOOL FOR DEFORMED

Great Possibilities in Georgia's Invalid and Deformed Children, She Says

An appeal in behalf of the inebriates and deformed children of Georgia is sent to The Journal by Mrs. W. E. Englett, 56 Loomis avenue.

Mrs. Englett believes that money would be well invested by the state in a combined sanitarium for inebriates and school for deformed children. No one seems to have the time to teach the children, each of whom needs special training, she says, and so they are being left undeveloped and unable to help themselves by their own efforts.

"God alone knows the possibilities there are in Georgia's invalid and deformed children," says she. "An education is the birthright of every child, and it is a hardship for a well developed child to be deprived of it. But how much harder it is for a crippled child to be deprived of a little learning that would bring entertainment and uplift in reading and writing! Who knows but that Georgia some day might be proud of one of them? If they could only see visions in the unfortunate, as I see in curables, perhaps they would do somecurables, perhaps they would do something in the name of helpless humanity."

MORE BIG LAND DEALS IN ALBANY, GA., SECTION

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

ALBANY, Ga., July 15.—Big deals in farming lands in this section have been quite frequent recently, indicating that the attention of investors is directed in this direction.

The latest big deal of this kind to be made public is the sale of about 5,000 acres in the northeastern part of Dougherty county, and lying partly in Terrell county, by L. C. Durham, of Dawson, to Massachusetts capitalists, who are said to have bought the land for colonization purposes.

It is said that Atlanta real estate figured largely in the trade, and that Mr. Durham will make his home hereafter in the state capital.

The land sold in this big deal, which is said to represent about $250,000, comprises the Gamble place and the Peek place, on the Dougherty-Terrell line.

Another big deal that has just been made is the sale of the Pine Island property in west Dougherty by O. S. Barnett, of Washington, Ga., to Charley H. Talley, of Atlanta. This property comprises 5,500 acres. Tepr hapecidieta comprises 5,500 acres. The price paid has not been made public.

FULTON COUNTY TO HAVE FOURTH JUDGE

House Judiciary Committee Approves Bill for Fourth Judgeship

The language of the bill follows the act creating the court now presided over by Judge George L. Bell. The bill has been unanimously endorsed by the Atlanta Bar association.

The action of the judiciary committee is said to ensure the passage of the bill during the present session of the general assembly.

ATLANTA NEW YORK PARIS

Now for Silk Remnants

The Selling Starts at Nine o'Clock

The silk section has given over every semblance of a remnant it harbored for this sale—that its "swan song" sale shall be its best.

There will be no more Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Co. silk remnant sales this season!

So be advised—this is your best opportunity to secure a dress, a coat, a waist pattern at smallest cost.

Here, we list some of the kinds included:

Crepe de Chines	Foulards
Messalines	Taffetas
Chiffons	Brocades
Wash Silks	Kimono Silks
Corded Silks	China Silks
Poplins	Novelties

And each of these could be further divided into many varieties—all this season's silks, now sold down to remnants (lengths one-half yard to ten yards), because they were the silks in the colors and patterns and at the prices that the discriminating women of Atlanta wanted.

The silks remain as fine as ever. The prices, however, are changed very materially.

Many Are Reduced One-Third

Many Are Reduced One-Half

A Great Many Are Reduced More Than One-Half

Indeed, at these reductions this will be the last silk remnant sale of the season!

Buy for now, buy for the fall and save, knowing no such opportunity will be offered again.

None of these silks on approval, none exchanged, none C. O. D.

Women's Hats Bow to New Prices

The bow amounts to a fine courtesy, so very low are the new prices, and now that so many women want another hat, but an inexpensive one, perhaps for traveling, perhaps for no other reason than to have just a fresh hat the sale amounts to a timely event.

Hats at $1.00

Twenty-five of these—and as many different hats. Originally a number of these were $10 and from that down to $5. Many of them are just what women will want for traveling or for street wear. Dark colors mostly, too variously shaded and trimmed to describe them.

$1.00!

It would not pay for the ribbons, the flowers or the shapes!

Hats at $5.00

Some thirty of these, and all fresh and charming, just from our work rooms. In the height of the season these would be $7.50 and up. There are light hats for wear with white dresses, there are smart dark hats for going away; there are a few mourning hats; there are a few Leghorns, a few Neapolitans; the greatest number are Hemps.

SCATTERED BUYING CAUSED THE ADVANCE IN COTTON

Market in New York Closed 3 Points Up to 6 Points Off From Previous Close

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, July 15.—There was no change in the general character of trade or crop news this morning, but Liverpool was a shade lower than due and offer caused a decline in the early advance of 2 points to a decline of 1 point, cotton eased off under realizing. Houses with Liverpool connections as well as those which seemed to be selling August, and that position was relatively weak, showing a net loss of about 11 points during the early trading, while other months were only 5 points lower.

After the close of Liverpool, offerings of August were less active and the market was quiet at times with prices holding steady around yesterday's closing.

Rather a bullish view of the weekly weather report and rumors that domestic mills were buying new cotton months at a hedge against forward requirements for the first time the season, gave the market a steady tone during the afternoon and prices ruled about 2 to 5 points net higher.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, July 15.—Cotton futures opened quiet, 5 points down to 2 points up, compared with yesterday's close. Cables were indifferent. The weather map was mostly favorable and crop accounts generally favored the south side, but with little short covering it offered for sale around the ring. Much bullish comment was provoked by the claim that spot houses were refusing to sell cotton for July delivery, offering was chiefly in the new deliveries. The lowest on the list at noon was 3 to 4 points under yesterday's last figure, which was the end of the most infr hour of business, and were 1 point under.

The market was dull and inactive until 11 o'clock, when the weekly weather report was posted. They made special mention of the lack of rain, many important sections of the cotton region and were considered unexpectedly unfavorable. Some little buying followed them and the market hardened a little short covering, no material advance took place. At noon the market was quiet but steady at an advance of 4 to 5 points over yesterday's close on the active months.

COTTON MARKET OPINIONS.

Sternberger, Sinn & Co.: We think, summing up the general situation, that the favorable action is to buy cotton on soft spots.

Carter & Co.: The market continued in control of the ultimate bulls on yesterday, but we think it can only be a short time before conditions surrounding present crop growth will cause the dominating influence and if conditions continue as favorable as they are at present, will make for lower prices.

Morris H. Rothschild & Co.: We continue to advise moderate purchases on declines.

Josephthal, Lauchheim & Co.: We continue to advise sales on all advances.

Shearson, Hamill & Co.: We would not hesitate to sell the new crop on rallies.

Logan & Bryan: We rather think that purchases on moderate setbacks are in order.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET WAS FIRM AND HIGHER

Union Pacific, Reading, Steel, Canadian Pacific, Chesapeake and Ohio Led

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, July 15.—Expectations that a strike on the eastern railroads would be averted as the result of yesterday's conference in Washington between the executive committee and the managers' committee has begun bidding shares at the opening today. Canadian Pacific rose 1¾ and Union Pacific 1 point on an advance of ¾.

Weakness in other parts of the list gave the market an irregular appearance. American Locomotive yielded a point and Smelting ½.

Advance in railroad stocks failed to stimulate demand, and as soon as prices had been readjusted to the higher level established in London, trading fell off appreciably. Opening gains were shaded in some instances but the average was held fractionally above yesterday's close. Union Pacific rose on an early weakness and Great Northern preferred gained a point.

Subsequent dullness and trading left the market bare of orders and at noon trading practically came to a halt. The list maintained its firm tone, however, and showed a slight gain. The morning's advances were fully maintained, although there was no material broadening in the trend was upward during the morning. Operators and the public showed little of the extent of the short interest, which was pronounced in some quarters to be the largest of the year. London and Hamburg bought Canadian Pacific and Paris sold the low priced coppers. Despite the lagging tendency of the copper group, the general market held firm and in some instances early gains were increased. Losses of a point or more were at the best level of the day. Canadian Pacific announced its gain to nearly 2 points.

Bear traders tried to scale down the slender gains of the morning hours, but the bulls were able to muster a sufficient following to greatly affect quoted values. Reading was depressed 2 within a small fraction of yesterday's close, but otherwise the market stubbornly resisted such efforts and closed firm, almost at the limit of offerings.

In the late trading prices gradually worked upward and best figures of the day were reached in the final hour. A number of the less active stocks participated with the leaders in the advance. American Tobacco gained 5 points, Reading another complete recovery after the attorney general's denial of the rumor that proceedings had been begun against the company. Closed strong.

HAYNES & CO. COTTON LETTER

NEW ORLEANS, La., July 15.—With the exception of Tennessee, North Carolina and west Texas, where rain is still needed, the crops prevailed over the belt, with only a few scattered showers. Conditions are favorable for increased cleanliness in the northwestern quarter with a fine weather towards the end of the week. Parity cloudy to fair weather with a few scattered showers in the Central and Atlantic states. Temperatures normal. The market opened unchanged to 1 point lower and closed 2 points, on a 12 point break in August in New York. While this improved position of July is admitted, it is thought that the fate of July is now unimportant to delay adjustment to a new situation, and that the bulk of the new crop movement supplies for the coming month is so strong as to put August futures beyond the grip of the manipulative control of a few.

The market broke a little towards 11 o'clock in anticipation of bullish remarks in the government weekly weather report about the hot spell in Texas in the middle of last week.

Party of Campers Asleep in Wagon Struck by Lightning

QUITMAN, Ga., July 15.—A bolt of lightning turned a wagon bottom side up in the road here last night in the several nights ago and C. H. Swilley and his three little sons, who were sleeping in it, had a narrow escape from death.

Mr. Swilley and his sons were on a camping and fishing trip and were sleeping in their covered wagon. The storm came up about 10 o'clock, with much lightning and thunder.

A bolt of lightning struck a pine tree about ten feet from the wagon and its force was such as to lift the wagon over and turn it bottom side up, scattering several feet. A mule hitched nearby was also knocked down by the bolt. Neither the men or the mule were seriously injured but were very much frightened and shocked.

The experience disinclined the party to spend another night in the woods, and they left for home next day. When Mr. Swilley reached home he found that a very valuable mare had died the night before on his farm, the night having been a peculiarly unfortunate one for him.

FAVORABLE CROP REPORTS CAUSED BREAK IN WHEAT

Wheat Closed to 11-8c Down—Corn and Oats Off, Provisions Steady

(By Associated Press.)

CHICAGO, July 15.—Wheat closed off in sequence of any proof that reports of rust northwest had been over-rated. Weak cables counted, too, against the bulls. Crushing pressure was a shade to 1¼ lower. September started 1 to 1 8c lower, sold at a sixteenth to ⅛ @ ⅜, fell to 86¾.

Big primary receipts and lack of export inquiry led to a more decided wheat break. Closed weak with September 1c net lower at 86@ 86¼c.

Drouth and heat in Kansas made the corn market firm. September started the same as last night to ¼ m at 61¾ to 61¾, touched 61¾ and rallied to 61¾.

Corn advanced but selling brought about a setback. Closed steady at 60¾@60¾c for September, ¼ @ ⅜ net loss of ⅛@¼c.

Speculative selling carried down oats. September started unchanged to ¼ lower at 30¼ to 29¾ and dropped to 28⅞@29.

Although provisions showed some strength on account of higher hogs, the market was heavy afterward related because of selling pressure from long. Packing transactions were a shade to 7½c higher, with September cutlons as follows: Pork 20c to 25c net; lard $11.70 to 11.72½; ribs, $11.62½ to 11.75.

THE KINDERGARTEN BILL

By Nellie Peters Black

A bill which has recently been introduced in the Georgia legislature to make it possible for any public school in the state of Georgia to have the kindergarten system introduced as a part of the child's training should have the enthusiastic support of every man and woman in Georgia.

It is conceded by thoughtful teachers that there lies a serious defect in the old system of education, and if such is the case, let us promptly apply the remedy, and those of us who are familiar with the common-sense method as demonstrated by the kindergarten teacher feel that here is the true foundation stone for a child's intellectual development.

Three-fold Education.

It is a wonderful thing to see the three-fold education of the little child as the teacher brings forth the games and stories, the constructive work illustrating these stories until the child's brain grasps the thought, his little hands give shape to the thought, and his inner consciousness responds with a joy which makes each day in the school room a delight.

Everyday things—the sunshine, the influence of the raindrop, the story of Mother Nature's unfailing care for her children, and of the real mother in the home—are used as object lessons, and, best of all, the soul of the child is awakened and he learns the lesson of love and kindness to others.

A Child's Awakening.

What does education mean except the awakening of the mind and soul of the child? When we have succeeded in doing this, the next step higher is easy enough, provided your first grade teacher works in harmony with the first impressions that have been created.

A Plea to Mothers.

Many a child's life has been ruined by injudicious management by a wrong beginning of a misguided teacher, and in behalf of the child we plead for a chance to get something better.

On the afternoon of July 17 an invitation has been extended to all who are interested in this subject to appear at the capitol, and we beg that all mothers who can do so will be there, as well as the interested fathers, to plead for the passage of this bill.

To Mrs. Pepper

Mrs. T. J. Butler was hostess at a bridge luncheon Friday at her home on East Fourth street in compliment to Mrs. C. B. Pepper, of Columbia, S. C., who is visiting Mrs. Edwin Pierce.

Mrs. Dan Yale Sage made top score and received a hand-painted vase; Miss Irene Bearden cut the consolation, an embroidered towel and Mrs. Pepper was presented silk hose as a souvenir of the occasion.

At the close of the game a pretty luncheon was served, the minor details carrying out a color scheme of pink and white.

Punch was served by Miss Mary Daniel and Miss Leslie Weathers.

Mrs. Butler received her guests wearing an embroidered lingerie gown combined with lace.

The guests present were Miss Irene Bearden, Mrs. C. B. Pepper, Mrs. W. T. Weathers, Mrs. J. Z. Elliot, Mrs. J. G. Camp, Mrs. T. K. Johnson, Mrs. Thomas James, Jr., Mrs. Sidney Johnson, Mrs. Samuel C. Prim, Mrs. J. E. Spurlock, Mrs. W. C. Alexander, Mrs. Edward Pierce, Mrs. Cooper, of Chattanooga.

Young People's Party

Miss Julia Black will entertain a number of her young friends Tuesday afternoon, the 22d, at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Black, on Peachtree road.

—Mrs. Thornton Marye is the guest of her sister, Mrs. George Alexander, in New York.

—Mrs. Dozier Pou, of Columbus, will arrive tomorrow to be the guest of Mrs. Samuel Weyman.

Birthday Party

Little Virginia Woolford celebrated her seventh birthday Wednesday with a pretty party to which about sixty children of the Whittier mill settlement were invited.

The young hostess is the daughter of Mrs. Mary H. Woolford, the resident settlement worker at the mill, and her mother assisted in entertaining.

The party was given in a picturesque meadow near the mill and a toy hunt provided amusement for the children.

The Evening Story — THE MOUSE

(Copyright, 1913, by W. Werner.)

When it became known that Electa Smith was going to marry Louis Martin there was instant protest. Everybody in Westmore knew Electa Smith and she had a good many friends. She had been for eleven years saleswoman at Stapleton's and a position of that kind is pretty apt to give one either a good or a bad name with the public.

Louis Martin was a big fellow, who would have been bigger still if he had not hunched his shoulders and sloughed in his gait. He was careless about his personal appearance and sometimes careless about the company he kept. He had light gray eyes that could narrow wickedly, a jaw as hard and steep as a cliff, and a voice that resembled the growl of an angry bear. He had it in true, his friends and followers, but most men let him alone. He had money enough to make him a certain power in the community, and his house had all the angles and cupolas and plate glass windows necessary to make it conspicuous and unsightly.

Louis had built that house just to suit himself, but his wife had lived in it until she died. She had been a Terwilliger and the Terwilligers were people of importance socially. They were, however, poor, and that was supposed to be the reason why May Terwilliger had married Louis. She was a big, handsome woman, full chested, rosy, proud—a very queen when she had on her good clothes. But Louis had actually worried the life out of her, abused her by word and act.

For ten years Louis had been a widower, but from no fault of his. He had besieged the heart of every marriageable woman in the town. But the women knew too much about him and they were wary. They walked by him and his big house with their noses up, even the poorest of them.

Then one day Louis went into Stapleton's for something and saw Electa Smith. He had never noticed her before. From that day he noticed nobody else.

Electa was plain. She was a tiny thing, thin, dark and sallow. She was very quiet, almost shy and timid in manner. But she had a sweet way with her eyes and a singularly winning smile when she smiled at all. She was, indeed, grave almost to sadness. She worked so long at Stapleton's that she seemed to have become a kind of machine that knew little besides handing down bolts of goods and measuring them off. She had never had a lover. Life had been a mere matter of work for her ever since she was left to face the world alone. It is no wonder that, though she had known the worst of Louis Martin all her life, when he came wooing she favored him. He gave her a solitaire, which had not been his first wife's, and she wore it proudly. But she kept on at work and would until her wedding day.

As soon as she heard of what had happened Mrs. Jim Daly went to see Electa. Mrs. Jim Daly came as near loving Electa as any one ever had. She always bought her dress goods at Stapleton's because Electa could measure them off for her. And every Sunday she made it a practice to have Electa up to her house to dinner. Mrs. Jim was big and sweet hearted and emotional, for she had a strain of Irish blood in her veins.

"Electa, darlin'," she said. "I hear you're going to marry Louis Martin. I wish you'd told me yourself, instead of waiting for somebody else to do it. Still, that's neither nor here. I've come, darlin', to talk things over with you and ask you if you know what you're doing."

Electa sighed. "I don't know. I've got to find out."

"May Terwilliger found out and she died. She would make a dozen of you, darlin', in body and soul and courage. Yet she was no match for that man. What do you expect?"

"I don't expect. I'm hoping," Electa sighed.

"Darlin'," pleaded Mrs. Jim, fervently and tearfully, "the first time he blats out at you you'll fall right down dead, you're that gentle and timid. I'd rather see my white kitten mated to a young tiger cub than you mated to Louis Martin."

Electa took a deep breath and answered nothing.

"What are you doing it for anyway?" demanded Mrs. Jim.

"I'll tell you all my reasons," Electa answered slowly. "I'm so tired of this store. I want—I've always wanted—a place to live in other than a boarding house bedroom, with the use of the parlor when company comes. I want a home. Louis has got one to give. And then I want Louis. I love him."

"You—love—him!" cried Mrs. Jim, and nearly fainted from astonishment.

Electa smiled faintly. She nodded. But she would say no more. Indeed, after that there was no more to be said.

Mrs. Jim rallied herself nobly and helped Electa with her wedding clothes. She wept over them as though she were preparing vesture for a human sacrifice. She wanted Electa to be married at her home but Electa said no; they would go quietly to the parsonage. Mrs. Jim replied that in that case she would accompany Electa.

So on a Wednesday evening Electa put on her new gray suit, her new violet toque and her white gloves, got into the cab with Louis and drove to the parsonage, where a small company of her friends and Louis' waited to witness the ceremony. And there she plighted her faith forever to Westmore's ogre. As Mrs. Jim said afterward, it was a good deal like seeing a mouse caught under the paw of a cat. "But she won't squeak even when she's scared enough to die."

They went away for a few days, then came back to the house of the cupolas and corners, which Louis had made no attempt to fix up for his bride. In ten years of emptiness it had grown rather shabby.

Housekeeping was new to Electa, but she attacked it bravely. And for a while Louis found no fault with her. Then trouble began. Mrs. Jim Daly went in unexpectedly one morning and found Electa crying her eyes out.

"Oh, darlin'," she moaned, "I know what this means."

"No, you don't," sobbed Electa. "I was the buckwheat cakes. They were sour. And—and—oh, I wish I didn't love him so much, Mrs. Jim."

Electa Admitted Nothing.

"You won't long," prophesied Mrs. Jim. "He'll kill your love for him, poor darlin'."

So the story got about that Electa was having a worse time even than poor May had had.

"She'll leave him," said Mrs. Jim "She can't live with him."

"She'll stay on until he pesters her into the grave the way he did poor May," snarled Miss Tousely.

So it went on for six months or so. Then something happened—so quietly and secretly that nobody in all Westmore save, indeed, Electa herself knew anything about it, Louis Martin reformed.

One day it was noticed that he was wearing a clean collar. This was sufficient surprise in itself. But greater surprise was still to be. One Sunday morning he walked to church with his wife and sat decently beside her until service was over. It was the first time Louis Martin had ever been seen inside a Westmore church. Electa gave a tea party for all her acquaintances, and Louis, in a really mannerly way, helped her to make things pleasant for them. He went to church that Sunday also, and the day following a corps of painters and paperhangers began work on his house. It was further noticed that Electa was acquiring a sufficient expression quite different from that she had worn since her marriage.

So it went on from better to best. Electa gave frequent invitations, and when she was invited in return took her husband out into company with her. He was toning down wonderfully. The cliff-like jaw seemed to be losing some of its flintiness. When one lovely Sabbath morning he actually joined the church Westmore went wild with curiosity. Mrs. Jim Daly sought the confidence of happy Electa.

"What have you done How did you do it?" she gasped.

Electa laughed. "That's my secret. Mrs. Jim, dear. I shall keep it as long as I live. By and by when I'm dead and gone I'll have it written out for you. That's time enough for you to know."

Many were the conjectures of how Electa had got the mastery of Louis. Did she hold some knowledge over him? Ah, that must be it! It was Mrs. Jim Daly, however, who found out the only satisfactory explanation, and that by merest chance. Her white kitten, now a grown cat, cornered a mouse one day before her very eyes. The mouse at bay turned on the cat with such a show of fight in its desperate little visage that the startled, bewildered cat let it go scurrying away to safety. "There!" cried Mrs. Jim. "That's the secret. I've discovered it. The mouse turned!"

And she told Electa. But Electa only laughed, without admitting anything.

LITTLE STORIES FOR BEDTIME

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Peter Rabbit sat under a friendly bramble bush on the edge of the Old Pasture and panted for breath, while his heart went pit-a-pat, pit-a-pat as if it would thump its way right through his sides. Peter had had a terrible fright. There were long tears in his coat and he smarted and ached dreadfully where the cruel claws of Hoofy the Owl had torn him. And here he was in a strange place, not knowing which way to turn, for you know he never had visited the Old Pasture before.

But Peter had had so many narrow escapes in his life that he had learned not to worry over dang rs that are past. Peter is what wise men call a phil-oso-pher. That is a big word, but its meaning is very simple. A phil-oso-pher is one who believes that it is foolish to think about things that have happened, excepting to learn some lesson from them, and that the next thing to do is to make the best of the present. Peter had learned his lesson. He was sure of that.

"I never will forget again to watch out for Hoofy the Owl," said he to himself, as he nursed his wounds, "and so perhaps it is a good thing that he so nearly caught me this time. If he hadn't I might have forgotten all about him some time when he could catch me. I certainly shouldn't have watched out for him way up here, for I didn't think he ever came up to the Old Pasture. But now I know he does, and Mr. Hooty'll have to be smarter than he's ever been before to catch me napping again. My, how I do smart and ache! I know now just how Danny Meadow Mouse felt that time Hooty caught him and dropped him into the old briar patch. Oooch! Well, as my mother used to say:

"Yesterday has gone away;
Make the most of just today."

Here I am up in the Old Pasture and the questions is 'What shall I do next?'"

Peter felt a queer little thrill as he peeped out from under the friendly bramble bush. Very strange and wonderful it seemed. Of course he couldn't see very far, because the Old Pasture was all overgrown with bushes and briars, and they made the very blackest of black shadows in the moonlight. Peter wondered what dangers might be awaiting him there, but somehow he didn't feel much afraid. No, sir, he didn't feel much afraid. You see those briars looked good to Peter, for briars are always friendly to Peter and unfriendly to those who would do harm to him. So when he saw them he felt almost at home.

Peter drew a long breath. Then he cried, "Oouch!" You see he had forgotten for a minute how sore he was. He was eager to explore this new wonderland for Sammy Jay had told him wonderful tales about it and he knew that it was here that old Granny Fox and Reddy Fox had found safety when Farmer Brown's boy had hunted for them so hard on the Green Meadows and in the Green Forest. He felt sure that there must be the most splendid hiding places and it seemed as if he certainly must start right out to set them, for you know Peter is very, very curious. But the first move he made brought another "Ouch!" from him and he made up a wry face.

"I guess the best thing for me to do is to stay right where I am," said he, "for here I am safe under this friendly old bramble."

So with a sigh Peter settled down to make himself as comfortable as re could, and once as far, far away on the Green Meadows he heard the voice of Old Man Coyote. Peter even smiled. "I haven't anything to fear from him, anyway, for hell never think of coming way up here," said he.

WHAT ANNE RITTENHOUSE SAYS

Have you seen those fascinating little suits for boys called Paul Dombey? They are worn by little girls, too, for progressiveness in dressing really started with children, although many mothers have not discovered it. Little girls were the first to wear pajamas instead of nightgowns and rompers instead of frocks and now they do not hesitate to wear the Paul Dombey suits when it is playtime in the country.

O, yes, our feminine youngsters are getting quite used to trousers. In fact, they think it torture to be put into skirts and they all rebel at sleeping in anything that is so uncomfortable as a nightgown. They don't like skirts—our modern youngsters—and after they get old enough to put them on during formal hours they at least have the joy of knowing that they will always wear pajamas at night, and trousers when they ride.

The young generation has not been taught to ride in a side saddle and it will probably never take it up. That much-discussed question may not be revived in ten years, and we will then wonder why anyone was so demure as to object to it.

Such chatter is a far path from the Paul Dombey suit which the modern youngster is wearing, not only to his own chief delight but also to his mother's joy, for she knows he looks his best in any touch out of the ordinary.

This suit has short square trousers of white linen that do not pretend to reach his knees they leave his little bare legs showing to the edge of his short wrinkled socks. Of course, there are tennis shoes on his feet or Boy Scout shoes if he wants to appear like a real grown up person.

The skirt that goes with these square trousers is of colored linen—deep raspberry is an excellent choice—and there is a wide round collar of white linen reaching to his shoulders. His trousers are drawn high up on his skirt and fastened above his waistline with huge flat pearl buttons run through long buttonholes that are overcast in a strong manner.

It is a picturesque costume, and though it was invented by a high-class firm, the shops have already taken it up and mothers can make it on an idle day.

Overalls for Children.

The kind of clothing that delights the summer youngster is the pair of overalls that fashion has given him for his play hours outside the city house. They are made of blue linen, stitched with red, have suspenders over the shoulders, two pockets in front and one in the back. They are long enough to reach to the ankles and, if the youngster is in the country, he usually disregards socks as well as a shirt and wears these workman's overalls as a covering for his short little underclothes.

Fashion is really doing wonderful things along the lines of comfort and health and freedom of children. One can hardly bear to think of the fashions of other days when children were put into enough clothes to hinder their growth and destroy whatever pleasure they might have by being born into this world.

So with overalls to romp in with Paul Dombey suits for the dressed-in hours and with all starch out of clothes, young life is worth living, to say nothing of the freedom from constant sewing and mending that such clothes give to a mother.

No Waistline for Girls.

There has not been any return to the two-piece frock for little girls except in the narrow pleated skirt and the long straight middy blouse, with its rolling collar and sailor tie; the rest of the clothes are quite straight up and down with pleats at front and back and belts half way to the knees.

On little boys the Russian blouses have grown absurdly short and the small bloomers less full. The kid belt is tighter than formerly, is placed below the hips and nearly the hem of the blouse flares out below it.

The sailor suit—the real thing—is exceedingly fashionable for boys between six and nine years old. These are made of white linen or duck, have the long trousers flaring over the feet, and the sailor jacket with its deep collar edged with a colored linen and a loose silk tie to match.

Thriftless Egypt

(Los Angeles Herald.)

Sir Archibald Geikie tells a story of a Scotchman who, much against his own will, was persuaded to take a long holiday.

He went to Egypt and visited the pyramids. After going for some time at the Great Pyramid, he muttered:

"Man, what a lot of mason work not to be bringin' in any rent!"

INTERESTING WEDDINGS

England-Hooge

The rectory of the Immaculate Conception was the scene of a quiet wedding Monday morning at 11 o'clock, the contracting parties being Miss Vera F. England, of Mobile, Ala., and Mr. Joseph W. Hooge, of Macon, Ga. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Robert F. Kennedy, pastor of Immaculate Conception church, and was witnessed by relatives and a few intimate friends. The wedding march was played by Miss Annye B. Hooge, of Mobile, sister of the groom, who also rendered a selection during the ceremony. The attendants were Mrs. J. H. DuRose, sister of the groom, as matron of honor, and Mr. Charles W. England, brother of the bride, acting as best man.

The bride is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. England, of Mobile.

The couple left immediately after the ceremony for an automobile trip to Macon, where they will make their future home, accompanied by Mrs. J. H. DuBose and son, Winston, of Macon, Ga., and Miss Annye Hooge, of Mobile, both sisters of the groom.

Motorcycle Racers Expect to Make Records at Tuesdays Meet

ATLANTA FACES CHANCE TO TAKE SECOND PLACE

Conzelman or Price to Work Tuesday — Fort McPherson Soldiers to Be in Attendance. Also Ladies' Day—But One More Game on Home Lot

Atlanta enters the Tuesday game with Montgomery just 4 points back of Mobile and but 14 behind Montgomery, which team now leads the league. The result is that a win and a defeat for Mobile means second place only half a game back of Montgomery, which club will continue to hold first place despite one more loss.

Tuesday's game, besides being one of the most important of the series, is set aside as "Fort McPherson day" and the soldiers from the military post will be on hand in large numbers. All are rabid baseball fans and as it is also ladies' day the stands promised to be packed. Everything is ideal for a good game and all who are lucky enough to be on hand are promised a real battle.

Manager Smith is right now keyed up to a high pitch and is out to take three in a row from the Montgomery crew. On the slab in the game Tuesday will be either Conzelman or Price. Conzelman's arm has entirely recovered and he is able to go the full distance. Price, too, is reported as being in grand shape and anxious to get a come back at the Montgomery crew. He was a hit off in Monday's game, but believes he can turn the trick on Tuesday and may be given the chance. If he does not work Tuesday he will most likely twirl Wednesday's battle.

MORE

Tuesday's game with Montgomery is next to the last battle the Crackers will play at home for over three weeks. The longest road trip of the year is started on Thursday and it will be the second week in August before the bunch return to Ponce de Leon. A win Tuesday and Wednesday will give the bunch confidence and enable the team to leave home in grand shape.

Lefty Leifield, the southpaw sent here by the Cubs, will get in so as to leave with the club on the road trip. He is an experienced man and should go just as well on the road as at home. Should the hot sun of this section have the same effect on him as it has on other veterans he should prove a big help to Manager Smith.

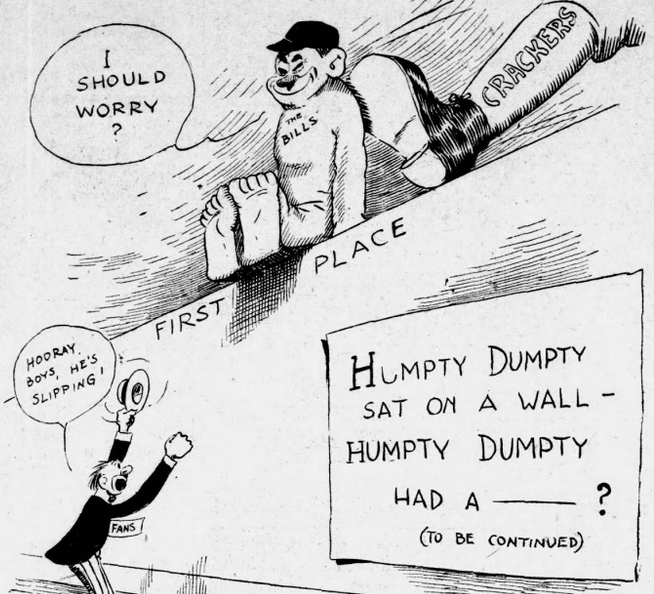
Wallace Smith, who was slightly hurt in Monday's game, will likely be back at third base in the battle Tuesday. His hand was only bruised and he will not be taking any chances at returning to the fray.

LIEFIELD IS NOW CRACKER

Strongly recommended to the local club by some of its own players and by his former owners, Lefty Leifield, formerly of the Pittsburg Pirates and the Chicago Cubs, was turned over to Atlanta by Chicago on Monday.

Smith was notified that Leifield had been instructed to report at once, and he is expected to report on Wednesday. Murphy states that Leifield is in tip-top shape and should make any team an acquisition for a grandstand finish. He is a good fielding pitcher with great control, and with his work the pitching staff assumes truly formidable proportions.

Smith has not yet decided who will be released to make place for Leifield, and will probably not decide until the end of the coming road trip.



Cordele Wins Over Valdosta

VALDOSTA, Ga., July 15.—In a ragged hard hitting game Cordele won the first of the series 9 to 6. It was the first game Cordele has won from Valdosta on the home grounds this season.

Wilder lost two games to Valdosta on the home grounds, the only games he has dropped this season, but he came back with a win. He was going well until the fifth when he gave up two hits, made two errors and walked two men, forcing in a run. Gentle, who relieved him, was pounded hard.

Star Golfers Enter

(By Associated Press.)

CHICAGO, July 15.—One hundred and four entries for the annual amateur championship of the Western Golf association had been received when the entries closed last night. Champion Charles Evans, Jr., will defend his title, and Messrs Phelps, R. A. Gardner, Paul Hunter, Warren Wood, Donald Edwards and Harold Ridgeley, the western interscholastic champion, among others, will be ready for the qualifying round next Monday at the Homewood Country club.

$25,000 Given For This Star

Player Chapelle Bought by Chicago White Sox From Milwaukee

CHICAGO, July 15.—Larry Chappelle, *the sensational outfielder of the Mil*waukee team of the American association, was sold to the Chicago White Sox. For him President Comiskey gave Outfielder John Beall, a catcher whose name was not made public, and a "cash consideration." Chappelle is to report at once. He has been batting around .350 and fielding with the best of them. Practically every club in the major leagues bid for him.

President Comiskey, of the Chicago club, said last night that Chappelle was the highest priced baseball player ever purchased. Beyond stating that he valued Beall at $5,000, Comiskey, however, would not give any figures.

Manager Callahan, of the White Sox, was equally reticent. "The Milwaukee club owners will have to give the amount of the cash consideration," said Comiskey.

$25,000 Price Paid, Say Milwaukee Owners

MILWAUKEE, Wis., July 15.—The Milwaukee management confirmed last night the reports of the sale of Outfielder Chapelle to the Chicago Americans, announcing he had brought $15,000 in cash in addition to Outfielder Beall and a catcher yet to be chosen. Outfielder Beall is valued at about $7,000 by the Milwaukee management. The catcher who will come as the final portion of the price has not been agreed on, the specifications being that he must be fully acceptable to the Milwaukee club. This would make the price of Chappelle equivalent to about $25,000, the highest price ever paid for a single ball player.

Races Postponed

PITTSBURG, July 15.—Storms and torrents of rain made racing conditions for the grand Circuit so unfavorable that the meet at the Brunots Island track was set forward a day. The card that had been slated for Monday will be run Tuesday, thus bringing the meet to an end Saturday.

BOXING GETS LAST CHANCE; BAD MATCH AND IT'S DEAD

Jake Abel Never Accused of "Stalling," While White Should Be Good—Wires State Fighters Will Be Here—Fans Must Not Be Buncoed

BY JULIAN MURPHEY.

For Friday night at the auditorium a boxing match between Charley White and Jake Abel has been announced. Kid Young and Charlie Lee are also scheduled to go ten rounds, while Eddie Hanlon is booked to box ten rounds with Frankie Wilson. But just whether any one of these matches will be staged, whether they will be perfectly on the square or whether they will be "framed" affairs The Journal will not state.

As a boxing town Atlanta has been an in and outer. Often the very best matches are shown here and then again some of the worst "stalling" matches ever imposed upon an audience have galore have been brought here. Some have shown a willingness to give the fans a run for their money, while others have deliberately crossed the promoters and made a fleet of the bouts.

With Charley White and Jake Abel in the big event the match slated for Friday night should not be a fake. Both of the boxers have good reputations to sustain and are known to be real good boxers. Jake Abel has shown here on numerous occasions and never has he been accused of stalling or refusing to give the public a run for its money. He is a clean cut boy for a boxer and personally I believe he will give the very best he has in hand.

As to Charley White I know not. White has never shown here, but is a boy with a grand reputation as a hard boxer. Only recently he twice knocked out Joe Thomas, who made such a hit with Atlanta fandom, and only a few weeks ago boxed Jack Britton a good scrap. He is working to get back up the ladder and a fake here would hurt him much. Anyway it would be hard for White to pull a fake match with Abel, as this Chattanooga boy is sure to be in there working all the while.

In announcing Abel and White the promoters of the match are in earnest. Of course no one will guarantee that either will be on the ground, yet wires have been received from both announcing that they have agreed to terms and received railroad transportation and will be on hand in plenty of time to take the necessary workouts prior to the match. Just when they will get here would be impossible to state. However, both have wired that they will be on hand.

Every lover of the boxing game is enthusiastic regarding the White-Abel match and are pulling hard for a good go. A real classy boxing match takes well and it is up to the boxers to come through with a good exhibition or toss the boxing game in the trash pile for keeps. This should be the last chance, and if it is a fall down then it is a case of never again for us.

CHANGES FOR JUST A DAY

There is still no loosening in the knot of first division clubs in the Southern. Chattanooga's win over the ex-leaders brought them within 20 points of Atlanta, while Atlanta is only 4 points behind Mobile. Both of these clubs are only a few points behind Montgomery.

Marquard again pitched the Giants to victory. It looks as if the Giants have started another streak. They have lost only once since their 14-game winning streak was broken. The Phillies also won.

In the American, Detroit again handed the leaden mitt to the leaders.

Won't Change Umps

NEW YORK, July 15.—There will be no change in the personnel of the National league staff of umpires this season, according to a statement issued last night by President Thomas J. Lynch. Mr. Lynch says that despite adverse criticisms of umpires by several club owners he has found the umpiring in the National league this year to have been as good as at any time in the last four years.

HOW CLUBS PLAY TODAY

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., July 15.—Birmingham will try to win from the disabled New Orleans team this afternoon, victories now being of some value as the locals climb. If Birmingham wins today it will be the sixth straight. Batteries: Prough and Meyer for Birmingham; Walker and Angermeier for New Orleans.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 15.—Memphis and Nashville have their second engagement here this afternoon. Kissinger and Seabough are slated to do the battling for the Memphis and Fleharty and Gibson for Nashville. Local showers are predicted.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., July 15.—The second game of the Mobile-Chattanooga series was called at 4 o'clock this afternoon. Weather clear and warm. Batteries: Chattanooga, Covaleskie or Summers and Street; Mobile, Hogg and Schmidt.

Hogansville Wins

HOGANSVILLE, Ga., July 15.—Hogansville defeated the fast team of Luthersville and Grantville combined. Hogansville would like to arrange games with some fast amateur teams for games. Write W. H. Copeland.

Score by innings:	R.	H.	E.
Hogansville ..... 200 000 02x—4	7	1
Luthersville ..... 000 000 000—0	5	2

While the veteran hurlers in the big show continue to set the pace there are a number of youngsters in both the American and National leagues who are going like they have the real goods and will eventually prove to be Johnsons and Mathewsons. The star hurlers who have been in the majors for years past are now rapidly losing cunning and there is a grand chance for youngsters to coome along and land strong.

Al Mamie Mack is in a class all by himself. He has just two veterans—Bender and Plank—who are delivering the goods this year and is going to fall back upon his string of recruits to do the heavy work. Houck, Brown, Bush and Wyckoff are the "babies" who have hurled such a good article of ball this season and with another year should be able to step in and fill the shoes occupied so long by Bender, Coombs and Plank. Russell and Benz, of Chicago; Bedient and Mosely, of Boston, and Dauss, of Detroit. All are comparatively young at the game and if given time will turn out to be stars.

In the National league Christy Mathewson is the peer of the bunch but there are a number of youngsters out after his record and in another year or so they are sure to be stars of the circuit. It pays to develop young hurlers and it is the manager who can best turn this trick who is always in the hunt for the pennant. The old timers are good as long as they last but no one can fool them forever and the developing school is quite an asset. Alexander, Rixey and Brennan, of Philadelphia; Humphries and Pierce, of Chicago; Demaree, of New York; *Cooper, of Pitts*burg; Benton, of Cincinnati; Rudolph, of Boston, and a few others are the youngsters doing best work and sure to

Right now Plank, of the Athletics, and Mathewson, of the Giants, are the leaders in the rival leagues. Though both are old at the game they have not lost their old cunning and can win with sufficient regularity to keep right in the running.

Walter Johnson and Chief Bender, in the American and Cheney and Marquard, in the national, are all going good and outdistancing the young stars who are hurling such good games.

Herein is shown the way the young hurlers of the two leagues have worked this season.

RECORD SMASHERS WORK AT THE 'DROME TRACK

MOTOR RIDER WINS BRIDE

Miss Pona Taylor, who stated some time ago that the only way for Tex Richards to win her hand was to win two races, made good her word on Saturday, and in view of the fact that Tex won the two races last week, came to Atlanta and married the popular cycle rider.

The ceremony was performed on Saturday afternoon at 4 p. m. at the residence of Rev. G. A. Little, corner Forrest avenue and the Boulevard. Mrs. Kimball, the sister of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Schwartz were in attendance.

"Tex" says now that he can throw in one race for good measure, since he is assured of his reward, and is going after that race tonight to show them. Many were wondering whether he really so far outclassed the other riders on last Tuesday night, or whether it was a frame-up which allowed him to win, but the reason of his pheomenal riding at that time is now apparent and tangible.

Slugging Fest For Atlanta

Home runs, triples, doubles, singles, bases on balls, hit batsmen and errors.

Above is described the Atlanta-Montgomery game of Monday which Atlanta took in slugging fashion 13 to 7. Montgomery used three hurler in the slug fest while Atlanta presented two flingers on the mound and of the bunch Elliott Dent got away with the best work.

Save for the hard slugging the game was practically featureless: Long pulled a neat catch, Chapman and Wares hit timely and often and Jantzen pulled a hair raising catch in the outfield.

Of more concern to the fans than the ball game was the injury to Wallace Smith. In grabbling for a line drive he badly bruised his left hand and had to retire from the game. The injury, however, is not serious and he will be back in harness in the battle Tuesday afternoon.

The hitting of Wares was one of the decided features of the fray. In five five times up this lad got four hits totalling 7 bases, one going for a triple, another for a double and the other two for singles. His fifth trip to the pan proved an out to center.

Jantzen pulled down a sensational play in the fourth when he ran over to the bleachers and grabbed Wallace Smith's hard drive. For a time it looked like a sure home run.

The Crackers made a great pick up when Frank Manush was signed. This vet is playing any old position in remarkable fashion. Saturday he worked a grand game at first and Monday at third Monday was as good as could be asked. His pickup of Breen's bunt in the seventh was robbery.

Tommy Long played Snedecor's line drive down the right field foul line in this second in amazingly fast manner. He just did get to the ball and speared it with his gloved hand.

Harry Chapman is fast picking up in his hitting. He drove in two runs in the second round and two more in the third. He also drove home a tally in the eighth. Chap has been steadily picking up the last few days.

Tommy Long and Whitey Alperman drove out the long hits for the Crackers. Whitey and Long both tripled in the first round and in the fifth Tommy drove out a homer. Dent and Agler kicked in two hits each.

E. Brown appears to think entirely too much of his ability. The talk of going to the big show for a fancy price has hurt him muchly and he spends most of his time kicking on the decisions of the umps. His action in this respect caused his banishment from the game in the second.

Gil Price started hurling for Atlanta but was taken out, it was evident that Gil was not right and while he would undoubtedly have won the game it was best not to take chances. As it is he gets credit for the win.

Students Follow Weston

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, July 15.—Edward Payson Weston, veteran pedestrian, now on his way from New York to Minneapolis, has a new disciples three Porto Rican students, who will leave New York to walk to Chicago and then to Champaign, Ill., where they will enter the University of Illinois.

The young men are Jose R. Becerra, Juan H. Font and Victoreano Paggi. They propose to follow the general route taken by Weston and they hope to reach Chicago within thirty days.

FAN GETS TICKET.

The lucky fan who was snapped in action at Saturday's game was Mr. R. C. Woodbury, of 587 Ponce de Leon avenue.

Mr. Woodbury has been rewarded with his ticket.

THE SPORTLIGHT
BY GRANTLAND RICE

A YARN OF THE STREET.

I saw him walking the street today—
An old slouch hat of a yellow gray—
A homespun suit that was thin and worn
With a washed out shirt—and his coat was torn
And hanging loosely on shoulder bent,
As if the most of his strength was spent;
Hunting a job that he couldn't find
With a rattled brain and a fagged out mind—
One of the many who'd left the farm
And come to town—with a kid on his arm.

Close by—weary and wonder-eyed,
A faded woman stood at his side,
Young in years but old in the strife
Of care and worry and toil and strife;
With cheeks where the roses years ago
Had turned to the pale white hue of snow;
Weary, watching the human tide,
Standing close by her husband's side,
And come to town—with a kid on his arm.

And the kid—poor bit of a devil, he
Was as sound asleep as a kid could be;
He had at least a place to rest,
Snuggled up to a tired man's breast;
Little knowing, within his dreams,
How far he was from the fields and streams,
How far away from the birds and bees,
The soft green grass and the waving trees,
One of the many who'd left the farm
And come to town—with a kid on his arm.

And many, I noticed, on the sly,
Smiled or laughed as they wandered by;
For the sight WAS queer—no doubt of that—
The man's worn clothes and the woman's hat—
And I, too, might have smiled except
I felt a sudden lump that crept
And clogged my throat, while from my eyes
As rain from April's sobbing skies
I felt the sudden tear drops start,
And something tugged so at my heart
That all the sunlight's gold grew dim,
Watching the kid—and her—and him,
And come to town—with a k... on his arm.

THE GERMAN SMEAR.

What with the impending German elimination from the Davis tennis cup and the absence of Messrs. Wagner and Heinieizm from the battlefield, no one can well blame the genial kaiser if he gives his mustache an extra yank in the course of twirling the same. The clouds athwart the Teutonic sky line were never heavier.

BY WAY OF EXPLANATION.

Don't let that sound as if a massive ostrich egg dropped from a 40-story building bother you to any unreasonable extent.

It is merely the esteemed Dodgers attained mid-season form.

SOME GAME? YOU MISSED IT.

June 12—Manager Dooin, of the Phillies, confident of winning the pennant, says his club is the class of the circuit and will never be headed. Quaker mogul proud of the fine showing of his line up.

July 12—"Big shake up in Philly squad. Dooin, disgusted, sends four regulars to the bench in hope of breaking long losing streak. Still hopes his club will finish as good as fourth."

The only mistake Bill Dahlen and Charley Dooin made was in climbing so high. Otherwise the drop wouldn't have been half so boisterous nor the heart-rending splash half as loud.

AND THEN AGAIN.

They may be out of the race and all that. But neither New York nor Chicago is furnishing any loud cheers over the late Pirate uprising. A club as good as that ought to be may pike along yet and help wreck somebody's sleep even if first place is a bit beyond ultimate reach.

If some kind pal would kindly lend Fred Clarke an alarm clock he might resume where he left off in 1909. The only trouble with Pittsburg is that it rarely begins to point in the proper direction until some other leader has begun to assort his world series pick for the opening game.

Once in a while the Athletics and Giants drop a ball game to break the grinding monotony of the other stuff. Even too much pie may begin to crab the diet and take the keen edge off the menu.

Nor in America on the verge of brooding melancholia in the thought that a Mr. A. Wilding will not be eligible to figure in any way in the Davis cup finals. He might not beat McLoughlin—but on the other hand—

HAS THIS MAJOR SCOUT VISITED SOUTHERN LEAGUE?

DETROIT, Mich., July 15.—"I have looked over the stars of half a dozen different minor leagues since leaving Washington, three weeks ago, and thus far have not seen a single ball player worth drafting, to say nothing of buying outright."

Thus spoke Jack Ryan, Washington scout, and Griffith's handy man, who has been beating about the bushes ever since June 15, in search of talent for the Nationals, and who joined the climbers in Detroit tonight.

Ryan was instructed to grab any promising young left-hand pitcher or fast outfielder whome he happened to see in action, but he returned empty handed.

"I had been tipped off to a youngster named Cantwell, pitching for one of the clubs in the Wisconsin-Illinois league," said Ryan to the writer tonight, "and I looked him over carefully. Cantwell had won nearly all of his games, and was touted as a wonder.

"Imagine the shock when I saw that he was no bigger than Donie Bush, of the Detroit Tigers and the day I watched him pitch he fooled opposing batters with only a round-house out-curve.

"Louis Roth, who umpired for us down in Charlottesville this spring, is working in the Wisconsin-Illinois league and doing good work. I asked him about Cantwell, and he said, 'If you ever recommended that chap to Grif, the Old Fox would have you shot at sunrise.' Believe me, Roth was absolutely right, so it was during my trip among the other minor league clubs I failed to discover any material which, to my way of thinking, would help the Washington club."

Babe Borton refuses to report to Jersey City, thus implying that the "Skeeters" are inferior to Chance's Yanks. This is libel, Babe, pure and simple.

MIXUPS ON BALL FIELD HAVE ALWAYS OCCURRED

NEW YORK, July 15.—There have been many scraps on the ball field, and McGraw, who figured second best in the recent set-to, has played a conspicuous part on and off the diamond.

Jack Doyle could fight, and would. Twenty years ago he had a quarrel with Eddie Burke, a sturdy little Celt on the New York team, and they had a fearful battle. Burke being in bed a week. Later, when Doyle was with Baltimore, John McGraw tried to steal third and was caught a block. Returning to the bench, McGraw said, "I thought that was a good play just then." "I thought it was a heluva play," snarled Doyle, and the fight lasted fourteen minutes.

Cy Seymour loved war, and had many scraps, his last of any note being with Arlie Latham, who was too old and too small for Cy and was easily defeated. Big Bill Lange was the best-natured man on earth, but when Jack O'Brien, the second baseman, cursed him one afternoon a great battle began and lasted until players and umpires interfered.

Joe Tinker is a neat boxer and dead game. Two of his best bouts were with Dick Egan and John Evers, both being equal in style and speed, to most ring encounters. Davy Jones, a quick man, with a feminine voice, is brave, and one afternoon attacked Jim McAleer. McAleer, who is a mighty fighter, upset Davy and then spanked him. Twenty years back McAleer and his boss, Pat Tebeau, went to war, and McAleer trimmed Pat most merrily.

A fight of undying fame was waged between Fred Clarke and Frank Bowerman and took place in a ball club box office, Bowerman, much the taller, winning out. One of the best fighters of the past was Tony Mullane, who had numerous mills, his most noted, perhaps, being a defeat of Bob Gliks. Another fighter of cold and icy ways was Elton Chamberlain. Jocko Halligan, a hardy outfielder, who liked to mix, thrashed Cub Striker one night and then went after Chamberlain, whom he found in a saloon. Halligan crept cautiously up behind Chamberlain, wholly innocent of the fact that Elton was watching his approach in the big mirror back of the bar. Just as Halligan made ready for a spring Chamberlain wheeled and flattened him with a bar mallet.

Bill Burns, the left-handed pitcher, leaped for Bob Ganley one afternoon and Ganley caught him on the ribs with a bat, putting Bill out of commission for many days. Hobe Ferris, the famous Boston second baseman, lost his temper at Jack Hayden one day and kicked him in the face with his spiked shoes, ruining Hayden's dentistry completely. Roger Connor and Jim O'Rourke contracted enmity when both were with the Giants, but never got a fair chance to settle it till more than fifteen years later. Then, when both were leaders of little minor teams, they met at a railroad station one night and fought with much spirit, but great feebleness till the laughing players parted them.

John McGraw had many mills. Dick Harley spiked him—spiked him so badly he had to give up active play—and McGraw, rising, bleeding and raging, slugged Harley till the umpires butted in. McGraw also battled with Bugs Raymond, winning from the pitcher, and tackled Paul Sentelle, the Italian infielder, then with the Phillies. Sentelle beat him handily. Tyrus Cobb fought half the Tiger team, his battles with Schmidt and Crawford being most notable. Bob Beacher and Roger Bresnahan had a royal fight in 1911, and, while they mixed it, two small men, Johnny Bates and Arnold Hauser, fought a much prettier, more scienced mill alongside, with nobody even looking at them.

Set Program For the Next Olympic Meet

United States Favors Move Which Will Set Standard of Events for All Future Olympiads

NEW YORK, July 15.—A standardized games program for future Olympic meets which will have the support of the United States delegates at the Berlin meeting of the International Amateur Athletic Federation, Aug. 20-24, has been prepared by James E. Sullivan, American representative of the I. A. A. F. The schedule, which the federation will be asked to recommend to the International Olympic committee for the Berlin games in 1916, contains thirty-two events.

The tentative program is as follows: Track, 100, 200, 400, 800, 1,500, 5,000, 10,000, 15,000 metre runs; 110 and 220 metre hurdle races; cross-country race; 2,500 metre steeplechase, with fixed brush hurdles and at least one water jump; cross-country run of at least 10,000 metres; Marathon run of approximately twenty-five miles, with cross country race course charted and blue prints furnished at least eighteen months before race.

Field events: Running and standing broad jumps; running and standing high jumps; running hop, step and jump; pole vault for freight; javelin and discus throw, best hand only; shot put, best hand only; hammer throw, and 56-pound weight throw.

For the relay events the United States delegates will suggest the 400-metre flag relay, each runner to run 100 metres straightaway, carrying a flag of his country, to be handed to his relief runner at finish of run, the race to be run up and down 100-metre lanes; 1,000-metre bat on relay race, each runner to run 400 metres; 5,000-metre team race, each country to start seven runners, with five to count at finish. Other events included are three and seven mile walks or their approximate equivalent in metres, tug of war, pentathlon and decathlon.

For competition other than the regular Olympic events are proposed rifle, pistol, and shotgun shooting; rowing; tennis, soccer, military riding and modern pentathlon.

The swimming program contains the 100-metre swim, 100-metre back stroke, 200-metre breat stroke, 500 and 1,500-metre swim, 400 and 1,600-metre relay races, fancy and high diving, water polo.

The Americans will request that the Graeco-Roman wrestling be dropped in favor of the catch-as-catch-can style, and that boxing be added to the supplementary program. Also, in case soccer, football or cricket is scheduled, the delegates will request that baseball be added, as it is now played in the United States, Canada, Australia, France, Sweden and England.

JOURNEYS TO THE DIAMOND
The Veteran

The veteran is the antiquated relic dressed in an old red shirt coaching at third, where the runs come round. His bones rattle and his pegging elbow creaks like a rusty hinge.

In the spring, when the kid outfielder from the Come-and-Go league whips the ball home on the line the veteran gardener lobs his catch to the nearest infielder, who relays the ball to the fungo hitter.

While the youthful shortstop shoots the ball from Texas leaguer territory straight to the first baseman and waist-high all the flight, the veteran infielder arches the ball over in rainbow fashion.

While the kid pitcher flashes his speed in the bewildered batter's lamps the first week out, the veteran slabbist lobs the ball up with nothing on it but the seams. He nurses "Letsy Ann," his faithful salary chucker, with tender care, like a hot house plant.

Gradually the weather begins to shed summer heat, and from sun to sun the veteran puts a little more stuff on the ball or uncoils his whip an extra lap in pegging for a runner.

Then comes the days when the sun begins to bat a daily average of .300 in the shade of the old apple tree. The veteran opens up his pegging apparatus. The old hinge, oiled with the honest sweat of toil, lubricates in the old way.

The arch throw is abandoned, having served its purpose, and the vet shoots 'em over from deep short on the bee line, whips 'em to the plate on a true bound, or breaks his curve on the outside (or the inside) of the dish in the old, bewildering way.

The papers heralded the news that Mike Casey, the grand old man of the Red Pins, has come into his own again, and is playing in the form that should carry the team to its third straight pennant.

When the veteran enters his twilight period he usually is an ornamental member of the pay roll for several seasons.

Sometimes the veteran disappears the way he came into the big show. Going back to the club that sent him up years ago, the veteran sticks a few seasons longer at a good salary, getting by on his "head."

The rumor that waivers are to be asked on him will oft spur a player on to feats he never knew it was possible for him to perform before.

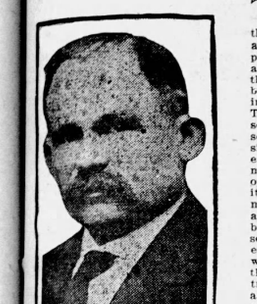
POULTRY, PIGEONS AND LIVE STOCK

The Fancy Poultry Situation of This Day and Time



THIS season in many respects has been a splendid one for those who have had the best quality of fancy fowls and made a good winning the past season at the shows. There are but few people who realize the importance of exhibiting their birds and what it means to them in dollars and cents afterwards. The fancy poultry industry of the south has practically settled itself down to a business basis similar to what it now is in the east and west. As there are so many more people keeping thoroughbred fowls than ever before it naturally makes a constant demand every year for new blood and for better specimens than a breeder ordinarily produces himself. Therefore, the person who exhibits and has proven to the world that they have the best in their line naturally enjoys a big trade every season for both eggs and fowls. There never has been a year that has more fully demonstrated this fact than the past season. The man who had the best in his line has enjoyed the biggest trade this spring he has ever had and at any price almost that they demanded for both fowls and eggs.

There are but few breeders who have bought eggs from ordinary breeders this year and had them shipped any distance because it has been convenient for them to get ordinary stock near by, and they have found out that it does not pay to breed anything but the best; $5, $10 and $20 sittings of eggs from the best pens freely this season, and breeding birds at $10 to $150 each have found a ready sale where only they were worth this price, and from now on every breeder who keeps only this class of stock will enjoy their share of business and will find a ready demand for all of the fancy specimens they can possibly produce. This is the class of trade in the fancy poultry business that makes the profit and is the kind of trade that is worth while to work for. No man can raise firstclass birds for less than $1.50, and with another 50c added for a coop to ship in it can be readily seen that you can not make a profit on your investment unless you can sell enough birds for $5 or more to pay the loss on the ones that have to go to market. When a person has from fifteen to twenty-five of the best where fifteen to twenty-five strictly fancy birds out of every hundred raised will sell for $10 and above each, you can see that there is a reasonable per cent of profit to be made by breeding fancy fowls when such prices can be secured. After deducting advertising bills, the time and expense of correspondence and the time that is required for packing, shipping etc., and a reasonable per cent on the investment a person is compelled to sell a certain number of fancy birds each season at $10 to $100 each to make the fancy poultry business pay. There will also be enough ordinary birds to bring the per cent of good ones down to not much more than 15 per cent, and when the price of feed has been what we have paid the past season every item of expense that can possibly be saved must be looked after if you expect your business to pay as it should.

There has been times when anything in the shape of a thoroughbred would sell for $5 and better, but that day has passed. People have become better educated and as it is as much easier now to produce a 90-point bird than it was years ago that a large per cent can only be considered utility birds and are worth only what they can earn as commercial egg producers, and as such a large per cent of this class of birds are usually produced by every breeder one has to be very careful as to how many of this class he matures or keeps each season when he has to buy the feed for them if he starts out even at the end of the year. Close culling early in the season is one of the things that will save a large per cent of profit for every breeder, and the minute birds (unless they are extra good) cease to give a large per cent of eggs the sooner they are disposed of and removed from the premises a greater per cent of profit will the others yield. It is these little items that have lost thousands of dollars for many poultry breeders, and it is the careful mating and maturing of the extra good birds that you must look to for your profit in fancy poultry breeding, the same as is done in all kinds of live stock. This rule does not apply to the fancy poultry business any more than it does to the breeding of horses. For instance, how many colts ever make a mark or sell for a fancy price, even though they are bred from the best of animals? Not more than five out of every hundred ever make a large per cent of money for the breeder, but fortunes have been made out of the good ones, and the same thing applies to poultry. The difference between fancy raising and live stock breeding is that a poor man with a reasonable amount of capital has the same opportunity to raise a $500 or a $1,000 bird as the millionaire does. In fact, he stands a better chance to raise one of this class as he will usually give more attention and is willing to work harder with them, and it requires a reasonable amount of money they can ordinarily get the same blood that is capable of producing them as the wealthy man has, and for so much less money invested in poultry thousands can enter it where only a few can enter the horse business or cattle business. So often see now single birds bring fully as much as the very best of horses and cattle, and it offers a far greater chance for the man with small capital to make a big per cent of profit than does the live stock industry. On the other hand the fancy breeder has hundreds of birds that they can exchange to the farmers for food or can sell to the farmers at a little more than cost of raising and at two or three times the cost at a little more than the cost of ordinary scrubs. If a breeder has a good trade it is surprising how much business of this class can be done every year. It is distributing hundreds of good fowls on every farm now where only scrubs could be seen a few years ago and by this method it is enabling many farmers to get three eggs now for the same feed that they used to secure one with. Therefore, they are becoming educated and are making a bigger per cent of profit out of their poultry and paying more attention to thoroughbreds than ever, and on the other hand it has opened a new field for business for fancy poultry.

Yours truly,

FO

FOR SALE—REAL ESTATE

$50.00 CASH.

No matter in what strained condition a person's financial affairs are in, no matter if you make just enough to keep going, or may be not quite enough, there are times when you get, maybe, $50, $75 or $100 ahead. What happens nine times out of ten, it is gone before you know it and where "the Lord only knows."

On first thought there seemed very little chance for a person in this condition to ever make any money to speak of. People in Atlanta use and bear of little chattel transactions every day in the week. Lots of us wonder, and most of us envy the persons involved in these deals. It's mighty easy to become a land trader and much more satisfactory to be envied than to envy.

This day and time property can be bought on almost any terms. You would be agreeably surprised if you looked a little further into the situation. There are a great number of small places that can be bought for $900 on up. Most of these transactions only require $40 or $50 cash; the balance $10 or more per month. In fact, the terms, as a rule, are made to suit the purchaser.

Put $50 in a piece of property, carry it for several months, or a year or two if necessary before you realize it you have got several hundred dollars on hand that you never in the world would have saved. After that you will find it pretty easy to trade around.

We have quite a number of small places, some of which are rented for $5 and $10 per month; thus making payments much easier. It will be to your advantage to come in and let us show you these places.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Two Important Central Leases Have Been Sold and Will Be Announced Shortly—Much Interest Is Being Shown in the New Grade for Whitehall Street at Trinity Avenue—Easier Money Is Reported by the Loan Agents

Two important central leases have been made, and should come in for announcement shortly.

One is on Marietta street and the other on Peachtree, and both are near Five Points. They are both sales of leases already held.

No important sales were announced Tuesday, but it was reported that a south side parcel had been sold for $46,000. It will be several days, however, before detailed announcement will be made.

WHITEHALL GRADE.

There is considerable speculation on the effect of the new grade on Whitehall street at Trinity avenue, as work will be started on it about October 15.

The city will contribute $3,500 to the work, which has already been allowed in the finance sheet, and will require only a formal resolution of council to be applied to the Whitehall work. The property owners will give $7,700 additional.

Several building plans are awaiting the new grade, and important lease announcements will follow its completion. Among those who have building plans are C. E. Currier, Otis & Holliday and Charles H. Blake. Other owners contemplate large buildings, but can't go ahead until the grade has been established.

LOAN STATUS.

It was reported on pretty good authority Tuesday that some of the loan companies that have been holding up temporarily will be back in full force about the first of August.

As a matter of fact, persons with good real-estate security who wanted loans haven't suffered, although the rate has been a little stiffer.

One loan agent said Monday that he had $50,000 on hand in 7 per cent money, and that there was a distinct easing up in the situation.

WEBB LAW POSTPONED BY SENATE COMMITTEE

Will Be Called Up Again on Thursday—Dull Session of Senate

After arguing the merits of Senator Hinson's bill applying the provisions of the Webb law to Georgia, the temperance committee of the state senate, at its meeting Tuesday morning, decided to defer action on the measure.

The bill was laid on the table and will be taken up at the next meeting of the committee, at 10 o'clock Thursday morning.

A number of other bills were reported favorably by the senate committee at a very featureless session of that body Tuesday morning. Most ofthem were local measures.

The senate passed one bill, introduced by Senator Jones, of the Thirty-ninth, requiring charges against members of county school boards to be preferred in writing before members can be dismissed.

Two bills of Senator Kea's in regard to factory conditions were considered, one recommitted and one laid on the table.

COMMITTEE HEARINGS.

Tuesday and Wednesday will witness the hearing of several important bills before senate committees. At 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon the committee on constitutional amendments is scheduled. At this time the bill creating the county of Milledge will be considered. The committee may set a hearing for a house bill creating Barrow county.

Tuesday afternoon the committee on sanitation and hygiene meets to consider the marriage contract bill. This measure carries out the doctrine of eugenics, requiring all would-be-weds to make out medical certificates.

This same committee will grant a second hearing on the medical practice bill at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning in the senate chamber.

HOUSE VOTES THURSDAY ON A. B. & A. PROPOSITION

Bill to Create Candler County Also Is Set as Special Order

Two matters of interest were fixed as special orders of business for Thursday morning in the house of representatives, by that body Tuesday.

The matter of the proposed creation of Candler county was set for disposal Thursday morning.

The Paulk resolution to raise a commission for the purpose of investigating the plan to purchase the A. B. & A. railroad and make it the extension of the Western and Atlantic railroad to the sea, was set for that same session of the house.

The bill by Messrs. Miller of Butts and Jones of Coweta, providing for the erection and maintenance of the Georgia Industrial Home for Girls, was reported favorably by the penitentiary committee. Because it involved an appropriation of $75,000 its fate was not decided by the house, the members referring it instead to the committee on appropriations.

When the house convened Tuesday morning the following bills were reported favorably by the general judiciary committee No. 1.

One is the inheritance tax bill of Messrs. Swift, Mobley, Cole, of Bartow, and Slater, of Bryan, and the other the "blue sky" bill practically as prepared by the Atlanta chamber of commerce, and introduced by Mr. Spence, of Carroll and Mr. Wohlwender, of Muscogee.

The highway commission bill, of which Mr. Blackburn, of Fulton is the author, has not yet been reported favorably, but has been referred to a sub-committee composed of Representatives Blackburn, Slater and Wright.

This sub-committee will report to the committee on Wednesday morning, that the report may at once be communicated to the house.

INHERITANCE TAX.

As it now stands the inheritance tax bill provides for a tax of one per cent on all inheritances either by rescent, will or deed or gift, effective upon the death of the donor where the inheritance is from immediate relatives. In bequests in which the individuals receive more than $5,000. On all other inheritance to more remote kindred or legacies to corporations a flat tax of five per cent is levied, irrespective of the amount.

The "blue sky" bill will make it extremely difficult for "Get-rich-quick-Wallingfords" to operate in Georgia if the house sustains the report of the committee. Hugh M. Willet, of Atlanta, representing the chamber of commerce, appeared before the committee as spo sor for the measure and urged its passage. He had made a close study of the operations of "wild cat" companies, he said, and was convinced that fully $5,000,000 was taken from the people of this state each year through their activities. The bill, he declared, would save the citizens thus much money every year.

Under the requirements of the proposed law, all dealers in securities, with the exception of banks and trust companies, must register them with the secretary of state in whom is vested the authority to pass upon all such securities before they are put on the market in Georgia.

TAX EQUILIATZION.

A redraft of the tax equalization bills has been in the hands of the ways and means subcommittee and probably will be reported to the main committee some time Tuesday. The redraft will contain the best features of the tax bills thus far introduced in the house.

The committee on sanitation reported favorably on the general medical practice bill of Mr. Gaillngtun, of Richmond; the bill of Mr. Shuptrine, of Chatham, to establish a state commission of drugs to regulate the sale of narcotics, and the bill of Mr. Blackburn, of Fulton, to regulate the sanitary conditions of barber shops. The bill of Mr. Parks, of Upson, to regulate the sale of narcotic drugs was reported adversely.

Granted Insurance After Lung Trouble

As many cases of Lung Troubles start with a cold or a cough, the best advice that can be given is to get rid of the cold or cough as quickly as possible. Otherwise more serious troubles are likely to follow. If the medicines you are now taking do not bring relief, try Eckman's Alterative, the remedy for Throat and Lung Troubles, which has stood the test of time. Investigate this case:

257 Dean St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Dear Sirs. About a year and a half ago my health rapidly failed until at the end of six months my weight had fallen to 129 pounds. I was troubled with night sweats, a severe cough and was very weak. About this time I consulted a physician, who told me my lungs were affected. Not satisfied, I went to another doctor, who, after examining me, said that I was in the first stages of consumption. At this point I started to take Eckman's Alterative. The night sweats stopped almost immediately, my cough became looser and gradually disappeared. My weight is now 142 pounds and my physician has pronounced me perfectly sound—which, together with the fact that I have been accepted by two different insurance companies for insurance, makes me sure of my entire recovery by Eckman's Alterative."

(Affidavit) W. E. GEE.

Eckman's Alterative has been proven by many years' test to be most efficacious in cases of severe Throat and Lung Affections, Bronchitis, Bronchial Asthma, Stubborn Colds and in upbuilding the system. Does not contain narcotics, poisons or habit-forming drugs. For sale by Jacobs' Pharmacy and other leading druggists. Write the Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for booklet telling of recoveries and additional evidence.—(Advt.)

not alienating the people who supported Mr. Blease for re-election in the stormy campaign of last summer. They say that it would be a mistake to open the campaign one year ahead of time.

Both Senator Smith and Governor Blease are making addresses in several parts of the State this summer but neither of them is making any reference to what they expect to base their fight on next summer.

Beyond saying that it will be a battle royal no well informed person dares venture a prediction on what the outcome will be.

Blease and His Supporters Confer at Hendersonville

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

COLUMBIA, S. C., July 15.—Governor Cole L. Blease, State Senator John L. McLaurin, Editors W. D. Grist, of Yorkville, and L. M. Green, of Anderson, supporters of the administration, met in Hendersonville on yesterday and were the guests of Senator McLaurin at his summer home. The party motored over to Asheville and took lunch. No statement as to what took place at the conference was given out, although it was rumored that the political outlook for next year was discussed.

Governor Blease stated that he went to Hendersonville to enjoy the climate and take a rest. He went from there to Glenn Springs for a few days' recreation.

Senator McLaurin refused to state whether or not he will be in the race for governor next year, saying that he was awaiting developments. It is commonly reported in political circles that Mr. McLaurin hopes ot succeed Governor Blease and expects to land the majority of the Blease strength.

Governor Blease appeared confident that he would defeat Senator E. D. Smith next summer, and said that he expects to take his seat in the United States senate on March 4, 1915.

Editors Grist and Green are prominent supporters of the present administration, their weekly papers circulating in strong Blease counties.
